Eades, Asa T.	Asa T. Eades died suddenly in Lexington last Wednesday, aged 70 years. He was a native of Paris, Ky., but had lived in Lexington about thirty-five years. He was probably the oldest plasterer in the state who had worked continuously at his trade. His last wife was Mrs. Lucretia Richards, whose maiden name was Jackson. They had no children, but she was a good mother to the children of his first wife. We join with our kindred and friends in sorrow for his death. The Gateway Sentinel Wednesday, August 7, 1901

Eades, Lewis	THE Richmond Climax give the particulars of the last legal hanging in that county which occurred in 1863. Lewis Eades, who lived near the Clark line, retired for the night some time in February. In the room were his grandson, Luke Baxter, now a resident of this county, and a negro slave, Claib, was sleeping on the floor. During the night the room was entered by masked men. Mr. Eades was killed and Mr. Baxter was hot in the head but escaped. Suspicion pointed to the negro, Claib, and several others belonging to Dan Dunbar, a neighbor. Preparations were made to lynch them but other counsels prevailed and they were taken to jail. Before the time of trial one of the negroes was missing and it was said he was sent to the army. Claib was duly tried, found guilty and hung. During the third of a century that has elapsed since that time there has been no legal hanging in the county though doubtless dozens of them have been needed. Eakins, Isaiah	A Damage Suit. Verdict for $11,000 Gives the Administrators of Isaiah Eakins Against the L. and N. Railroad. Henderson, Ky., Feb. 2.—A verdict in one of the hardest fought railroad damage suits on record was arrived at in the circuit court here Wednesday, when the administrator of Isaiah Eakins was given a judgement for damages against the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. for $11,000. In January, 1895, Isaiah Eakins in attempting to alight from an L. & N. passenger train at Robards, was run over and killed. Suit was instituted in May, 1895, asking for $20,000 damages. Judgement for $15,000 was awarded the plaintiff. On defendant's motion a new trial was had at the following September term, which resulted in a verdict for $11,000 for the plaintiff. The defense then carried the case to the court of appeals, which reversed the judgement and sent the case back for a new trial. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, February 7, 1899

Eals, H. T.	Horrible Holocaust The Court View Hotel destroyed by fire early yesterday morning H.T. Eals, of Cynthiana, burned to death, James Donahue badly hurt and others injured About 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning the clang of the fire bell broke the stillness of the early morn and the Court View Hotel was found to be a mass of flames. It had progressed so far before being discovered that nothing could be done to save the building, but the firemen worked heroically to save the inmates and to prevent the spread of flames. A cold wind was blowing and every where the water fell except on the fire was soon glazed with a coating of ice. By the time the alarm was given all access by the stairways was cut off and most of the inmates jumped from the windows of the second and third stories, and it is a great wonder the death list is not longer. The only victim as positively known was H.T. Eals, of Cynthiana, who was one of the clerical force employed at Burley headquarters. He left his room and might have escaped, but went back for his clothes and was not seen again until his body was taken from the ruins the next morning. When found it was badly disfigured, but was not burned up. It was persistently rumored that a drummer, whose name could not be ascertained, was also in the ruins, but his was denied. James Donahue, Jr., roomed in the third story and jumped from the window, aiming to light on the veranda. He missed it and stuck the pavement with terrific force. No bones were broken, but internal injuries are feared. Will Reynolds, of Trimble county, W.E. Sandy and B.B. Thomas, of Harrison, who are employed at tobacco headquarters, were considerably cut and bruised. Sam Powell, Deputy Clerk, and Tom Rupard, clothing merchant, jumped from the third story window to the porch. They were cut and bruised, but escaped serious injury. The family of Mr. Huls, the proprietor, were taken from the windows by the fireman. Miss Huls had a severely burned hand. Miss Hallie Veal, of Lexington, a visitor, had a badly sprained ankle and quite a number of others were more or less cut and bruised. The building was formerly a private residence, but was changed into a hotel about twenty-two years ago by Mr. S.S. Hayes. It was first the Central Hotel and while under the management of Mr. Fleming, of Georgetown, was damaged considerably by fire. The fire occurred about the same time in the morning as did this one, many of the guests barely escaping with their lives. It was rebuilt and a third story added. A room containing a box ball alley, and Tom Cowan's barber shop, adjoining the hotel, were ruined by smoke and water. The loss is said to be about $25,000 with only partial insurance. The loss of Mr. Huls in furniture and fixtures was about $2,500 with only $500 insurance. While fighting the fire Harry Tanner was overcome by the smoke and gas, and was carried home. A portion of the front wall fell some hours later and Clay Brownell was struck about the head and shoulders by a flying brick and was considerably hurt. The body of Mr. Eals will be buried at his home in Harrison county. He was a cousin of Mrs. Clarence Lebus, the wife of the President of the Burley Tobacco Society. After being taken from the ruins it was carried to Hall's undertaking establishment. Coroner Brinegar impaneled a jury, who viewed the remains and adjourned until this morning when the inquest will be concluded. The Winchester Democrat Friday, January 8, 1909 Coroner's Inquest Coroner Brinegar and jury held an inquest over the body of H.T. Eals, who was burned to death in the Court View fire, but the evidence elicited no facts as to how the fire originated, and the verdict simply stated that he was burned or suffocated. The jury was composed of W.J. Watts, T.B. Haggard, J.G. Hayes, S. Linville, C.H. Low and J.P. Adamson. The funeral of Mr. Eals was held Sunday at Cynthiana and was attended by a large crowd. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, January 12, 1909 Henry T. Eals The Cynthiana Democrat has the following concerning the gentleman who was burned to death in the Court View Hotel fire: "The death of Henry Eals was a fearful blow to his parents and other friends. The first news at Cynthiana was by telephone, and simply stated that Henry was missing. All hoped that he would be accounted for, but subsequent messages gave little hope. His father left for Winchester on the first train, accompanied by several friends. H.A. Rohl, jeweler, received a message later giving the repair number of watch which had been found with a body in the ruins, and the number was Henry's. There could be no longer doubt. The remains were recognized by other marks also. The watch had stopped at 4:25. It is quite probable that Henry was overcome by smoke, and escaped the agony of a severer death by fire. The deceased was twenty-eight years old, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. T. Eals. Cynthiana had been his home practically all of his life. He was a young man of most engaging personality, a quiet, gentlemanly fellow of pleasant address and agreeable manners. After reaching his majority he had at various times been employed by business houses at Cynthiana, and a clerk at the Commercial Hotel, and at the Olympian Springs Hotel during the summer. He had been in Winchester only a few weeks, where he was one of the assistants in the business offices of the Burley Tobacco Society. He had a great many friends who are grieved at his unfortunate and untimely end. The whole community sympathizes deeply with the bereaved family. The deceased was a namesake of his grandfather, the late Henry Eals. He had an uncle, Harry Eals, residing at Frankfort; Ashley and Sid Eals are his uncles; Mrs. W. B. Taylor, of Bethany, W. Va., and Miss Lucy Eals, are his aunts." The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, January 19, 1909

Early, Jubel A.	A Little Bit of History Gen. Jubel A. Early was born in Franklin County, Va., in 1816, graduated from West Point in 1837, and is still in good health. The Winchester Democrat Wed., 7-13-1892 Blue Lick Springs. Claimed by a Virginia Woman, Who will Sue For the Famous Resort. A Lexington special says: Miss Lottie Early, of Lynchburg, Va., daughter of the late Clement Early and great niece of Gen. Jubal Early, is now in this city in consultation with attorneys in regard to the bringing of a suit for the recovery of the property on which is situated the famous Blue Lick Springs, near Carlisle, in Nicholas county. Miss Early was born near Blue Lick Springs, but the past twenty years has lived in Virginia, and only recently came into possession of information indicating that she is entitled to the property. The large tract of land originally belonged to her mother, who before her marriage to Clement Early was Miss Lou Holliday, daughter of Thomas Holliday, at one time proprietor of the old Blue Lick Springs Hotel, which was burned during the Civil War by Metcalf's cavalry. Clement Early died, leaving his widow with two daughters, one of whom also died later, leaving Miss Lottie, then a child to the care of a guardian. Later the mother also died and the property inherited by the child through her mother was entrusted to the administration of the guardian. The guardian sold part of the property, including the springs on the south side of Licking river. This sale, it is now alleged, was not in accordance with the requirements of the Kentucky statutes governing the property of infant heirs. The Sun-Sentinel, Thursday, October 13, 1904

East, boy		Some marked peculiarities appear in connection with the drowning of persons in the Kentucky river from Boonesborough up to the Mouth of Red river. The drowning at Ford last week brings forth these remarks. From the settlement of this locality, 1775 to about 1885, a period of eighty years, it is believed nobody was drowned. About the latter year Capt. Turnbull, of Winchester was drowned at the mouth of Bear Run. Probably three years later, Pen Coe, another Clark county man was drowned just below the mouth of Four Mile. In 1882, a dozen negro men and a white woman were washed out of a railroad camp on Two Mile creek into the river and drowned near Ford during a sudden rise. A few years later, several boys from Clark were drowned at the Mouth of Upper Howard's creek. Since that time the number of drownings especially at Ford, have been too great to be recalled, but perhaps every instance except that of John Sewell, several years ago and the boy East a year ago and a colored boy the past Spring that were from Clark. Thus it spans that for nearly a century and a quarter only four or five Madison county people have been drowned along about fifteen miles of river and those within the brief period of less than six years, while Clark has been unfortunate for nearly forty years and the extent of dozens. But our Madison people on the North side never had any great love for water except for farming purposes.—Richmond Register. This is only a partial list of those drowned near Ford is even the last generation: Rufus Emerson was drowned at Boonesboro; a man named Tillet near the Mouth of Otter Creek; John Atkinson some where near the same place; two sons of Commodore Richardson at the mouth of Two Mile, and a negro boy in the big eddy above the Mouth of Four Mile. Zach Hukill drowned himself on account of ill health near Riverside; Bennie Butler was drowned in Two Mile creek and his body was afterward found in the river. Quite a number of other drownings have occurred, the names of the victims having escaped our memory. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, July 2, 1897

Eastern Kentucky Flood		Louisville, Ky., Feb. 25.—Reports of loss of life in the eastern Kentucky flood continue to come in. Elder Morton, a Mormon missionary, was drowned near Mt. Elkhorn. An unknown woman was drowned in Leslie county and in Jackson county Henry Holcomb lost his life while trying to ford a stream. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, February 26, 1897 Farmer, Wife and Child Are Swept Away by a Swollen Stream Ashland, Ky., Feb. 25—A Floyd county report says that a farmer named Morgan, with his wife and child were drowned on Beaver creek, which overflowed its bank, destroying their home. All trains were annulled Wednesday on the Ohio & Big Sandy branch of the Chesapeake & Ohio railway, the Big Sandy backwater having covered the trestles. The Ohio is still rising two inches an hour, but it has not reached the danger line here. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, February 26, 1897
Easters, Silas	AA	NEGRO LYNCHED. A Small Mob Hanged Silas Easters at Hodgenville, Ky., for a Revolting Crime. Hodgenville, Ky. Oct. 21.—A mob of 50 or 75 determined citizens about 2 o'clock Thursday morning took from the jail Silas Easters, a negro, charged with a revolting crime, and strung him to the courthouse steps. The mob was headed by Young Ward, the victim of the Negro, and his father, Thomas Ward. So quietly and systematically did the mob go about its work that the citizens of the town were in ignorance of the existence of a mob until the Negro was in its clutches. The mob was formed in the neighborhood of the crime, and as it hurriedly marched toward town volunteers joined in from different sections. Arriving in town, the mob was swelled by citizens, who had been informed of its coming and who gave it hearty support. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, November 5, 1901.
Eastin, Columbus C.		DIED—At his home near the Oil Springs, Tuesday, Columbus Eastin, aged about 65 years. He was one of the most prominent men in that section of the county and an honorable upright man. He was one of the most prominent members of Kiddville Baptist Church, and was instrumental in having that Church established. In his death Clark county loses one of her most valuable citizens. The Democrat, Wednesday, March 29, 1893.

	Mrs. Sarah Eastin appointed administrator of C. C. Eastin with Wm. Lawrence, A. A. Clay and Rhodes Eubank appraisers. The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, May 10, 1893 One of the cases decided in the Circuit Court this week has a history. Before the beginning of the present century, Gen. Marquis Calmes, a French Huguenot, who had married into noble family in England, came to Woodford county and settled there. In 1834 he died there, leaving a numerous progeny all of whom subsequently moved away, many of them to Missouri and Texas, then the "Far West." One daughter, Miriam, married an Eastin, from whom the family of that name in this part of the State descended. By his will, which was made in 1828, he left a large property in this county to the daughter. The language used rendered it somewhat doubtful as to whether he intended to give this daughter the property in fee simple or to simply give her a life interest with remainder to her brother, Spencer Calmes. The latter at one time had large landed interests in Missouri, but finally lost all his property and died in this county many years ago. The property embraced in this will included the famous "Oil Springs," the farm of Minor Hisle, a part of the lands of John Goff and Andy Hampton, as well as some others in that section. Several years ago Dock Eubank, who married a great granddaughter of Gen. Calmes, brought suit to have the will construed by the court in order to perfect the title to his children's part of the land. After the death of C. C. Eastin, the heirs of Spencer Calmes entered an appearance and made a fight under the will. The case was decided in favor of the Eastin heirs. Eastin, Mrs. Miriam Calmes	An Old Case Settled. In the Court of Appeals Wednesday the case of Calmes vs. Eubank from this county was affirmed. This was a suit to determine what was meant by the will of a man who died in 1828. Seventy years ago there lived a man in Woodford county Marquis Calmes, who came originally from North Carolina. At his death in 1828 his will was probated. It was written by himself and provided that certain lands in Clark county should be given to his daughter, Miriam, who had married a man named Eastin. At her death it was to go to her children, with revision to Spencer Calmes, the son of the testator, who was charged with the duty to see that this property was settled upon by Miriam Eastin and children as the testator declared his intention should be done. To Miriam Eastin four children were born, Columbus, Mark, and Thomas Eastin and Pricilla, who afterward married a Weaver. To the latter a daughter named Miriam, after her grandmother. She married W. Z. Eubank and died a number of years ago leaving three sons. During all this time nothing had been done looking into the interpretation of the seemingly contradictory clauses of the old Calmes will and about eight years ago Mr. Eubank's brought suit in behalf of his children to have the will construed and quite the title to his children's property. The Circuit Court decided in their favor, none of the opposing heirs being before the court. Spencer Calmes, the son of Marquis Calmes, who was mentioned in his will went to Missouri and died there almost half a century ago, and his heirs are scattered all over the country from Maine to California. In cases similar to this suit brought by Mr. Eubank, five years are allowed for persons with opposing interests may take action. Nothing was heard of these descendants of Spencer Calmes until this time had nearly expired. As Thomas Eastin, the last child of Miriam Calmes Eastin, had died in the meantime they brought suit for the property claiming that under the will it should revert to the heirs of Spencer Calmes. Marquis Calmes was evidently not a scholar and had used words in his will with the full meaning of which he evidently was not familiar, and the work of the court was to say that he did mean. This the higher court has decided as meaning that the descendants of Miriam Calmes should have a fee simple title to the property. This property is very valuable. It embraces the Oil Springs property, the Lum Eastin Mill property, the farm of Minor Hisle and other property. The Oil Springs could be made one of the nicest resorts in this part of the State and now that this cloud has been removed from the titles, we should be glad to see some syndicate obtain control of it and make it a place of fashionable resort. Ecton, Charles Jackson		DEATHS Thursday morning, of brain trouble, Charles Jackson, son of Joseph J. Ecton, aged about six years. Burial today in the Winchester cemetery. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, April 11, 1902. Obituary. Charles Jackson Ecton. On April 10, 1902, at the home of his father on the Ecton pike, Charles Jackson Ecton passed from the scenes of earth to the realities of heaven. At the time of his death Charles was five years and ten months of age. For eight days he had suffered intensely from cerebral pneumonia. These are the sad facts connected with the close of a life that, like the rose withered by the frost, drooped and died in the morning of its promise. Charlie was a lovable boy. His disposition was such that all who knew him loved him. Around him clustered the tenderest hopes of a loving mother and fond ambitions of a devoted father, and the sincere love of his grandparents and a host of other relatives. At his grave full grown men wept as if their hearts would break. Pathetic memories of his closing hours will ever abide in the hearts of his parents. The night before he died, he called his father to his bedside. He could not speak. Death was almost at hand. He threw his arms around his father's neck and kissed him. Just before his death unusual power seemed to enter his frail body; sitting up in his mother's lap he, as if catching a strain of the angels' song, hummed a sweet tune. As the little body, worn out by intense suffering, was lowered gently and lovingly into

		its last resting place, in our beautiful cemetery, the singers from hearts of sympathy sang, “Earth has no sorrow that heaven cannot heal.” May one and all of the bereaved ones realize the truth of that beautiful song. A host of friends sympathize. God awaits with comfort. “In the night of death hope sees a star and listening love hears the rustle of a wing.” To those who believe in Christ, what is death? “Just a folding of hands and a sinking to slumber, A good night to the world with its millions that weep; Just a rest for earth’s children who sometimes grow weary, And pillow their heads on her bosom to sleep.” Weep not for Charlie, beloved parents. He now rests in the bosom of God. Press on until you shall meet him there. C. J. A. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, April 29, 1902

Ecton, Francis		TRAGIC DEATH OF AN OLD CITIZEN Our people were shocked Sunday morning to hear of the tragic death of Francis Ecton, one of our oldest and most respected citizens. For several years his mind had been impaired to such an extent that he was unable to recognize even his own children. He required constant watching and the most vigilant attention was at all times paid to him by the members of the family. On Saturday night he had retired, and being left unattended for a few minutes he arose and left the house. His absence was discovered in a short time and a vigorous search was kept up during the remainder of the night, but without results. Early Sunday morning the body was found by Rodney Webster, a short distance north of the city near the K. C. track. He had been struck by a passing freight train and instantly killed. One leg was nearly cut off, the other leg and one arm broken and the skull crushed. The funeral was preached yesterday at the family residence by Dr. Wm. Stewart and Rev. J. Pike Powers, of the Baptist church, of which he had long been a member, and the burial in the cemetery. Ecton, James	Fatal Accident. James Ecton, One Of Our Most Prominent Citizens Found Dead. Supposed to Have Been Kicked By a Horse. Our community was shocked Friday morning by an accident that resulted in the death of James Ecton, one of our most prominent and popular citizens. No one saw it and consequently no one knows exactly what occurred. He was found in his stable lot dead or nearly so. His saddle was lying on the ground near by and a bridle was grasped in his hand. There was a bruise on the forehead or temple, and a large piece of flesh was torn from the back of the hand. The supposition is that he attempted to catch the horse and that the animal probably bit him and then kicked him in the stomach. The funeral was preached at the family residence by Rev. B. B. Bailey and the remains were interred in the cemetery. The deceased was sixty-one years old and leaves a wife, formerly Miss Flynn; also two sons, Walter and Ernest, and one daughter, Miss Rachel. He was plain and outspoken in all his dealings, perfectly frank and fair and singularly free from deceit. His popularity was attested by the fact that he filled the desirable office of Jailor for several terms. He was a good business man and had accumulated a comfortable property. During the civil war he cast his lot with the confederacy and made a good soldier. He was a member of Roger Hanson Camp of confederate Veterans, which attended his funeral in a body. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, January 9, 1900

		A Tribute to James Ecton. The Confederate Veterans were called together on Saturday morning last to pay their last tribute to comrade James Ecton. Yesterday the shield and buckler of his family, a robust and buoyant figure in our midst, "a man among men," today he sleeps with the silent majority who have crossed over the river to rest under the shade of the trees." The thin gray line is growing thinner, and when this stalwart soldier fell the gap in the ranks was left unfilled. As death claims a victim we cannot "close to the right" without leaving the left exposed, James Ecton walked among us the very embodiment of splendid manhood and soldierly virtues. Tried and true friend and comrade, hail! And farewell. "After life's fitful fever may you sleep well." To the stricken family we offer our sincere sympathy, and direct that this be spread on our records and that it be published in our papers. Leeland Hathaway, Rodney Haggard, B. F. Curtis, R. She was originally Miss Frances Rainey, a native of this county. In early life she married Minor Griggs. They lived together until past middle age, and by industry and economy, accumulated a competence. The husband finally sickened and died and Mrs. Griggs, after the conventional time of mourning had elapsed, married William Estis. The angel of death passed that way again, and again Mrs. Estis was a widow. Fully believing that it is not good for either man or woman to be alone, she again stood before nuptial altar, this time with Jas. Ecton. Before many years had elapsed, she followed his remains to their last resting place, but nothing daunted, she again laid aside her widow's weeds, this time at the solicitation of Rev. Smith V. Potts. Death is not respecter of persons, and it was not very long before he, too, was gathered to his fathers, leaving a disconsolate widow. Still convinced that marriage is not a failure, and longing for the strong arm of a younger husband to support her declining Frazer Collingsworth, a young man who worked for her. For various reasons this marriage was not a happy one, and the groom left after squandering much of his wife's possessions. She shortly afterward obtained a divorce from him and some time ago went to Missouri. It was reported here that she had married again a few months ago, but it is said to be untrue. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, June 6, 1902.

Ecton, Mrs. Mary Virginia	Passed away Death of Mrs. Virginia Ecton – One of our best loved women gone to her eternal reward Death is robbed of much of its terrors when we have good reason to believe that it is but a transition from this world to a higher, better and happier one. Such a death was that of Mrs. Mary Virginia Ecton, who died at her home on Washington street, Wednesday morning of erysipelas, aged sixty-five years. She was a daughter of the late Col. Francis Flournoy Jackson, of this county, and was raised at Jackson's Ferry on the Kentucky River. In the stirring times of the early days of the Civil war she was an ardent Southern sympathizer and many recruits to the ranks of the Confederate army were enlisted through her zeal and influence. She had always taken a great interest in the Confederate Veteran Association and the local camp will attend the funeral in a body. In 1863 she married William H. Ecton, who, at his death, ten years ago, was one of Winchester's leading merchants. She leaves three children, Mrs. E.S. Jouett and Miss Laura Ecton, of this city, and Mr. H.D. Ecton, of Minneapolis, Minn. The latter was summoned by the very serious character that his mother's illness assumed from the beginning, but did not arrive until after her death. The funeral will be preached this afternoon in the First Presbyterian church, services being conducted by Elds. J.H. MacNeill, of this city, and C.J. Armstrong, of Troy, New York, and the remains will be buried in the Winchester cemetery. The following will act as pall bearers: W.P. Azhill, M.T. McEldowney, Dr. Isaac Browne, W.S. Massie, B.R. Jouett, and Dr. C.H. Rees. The honorary pall bearers will be J.M. Benton, W.M. Harding, B.F. Curtis, S.D. Goff, N.P. VanMeter, and W.P. Winn. She was a woman of very firm convictions and would make no compromise with what she believed was not right. For this reason she was found in the front rank of every fight made for civic righteousness and the betterment of municipal conditions. While deeply imbued with Christian charity, she firmly believed in her own church and was intensely interested in all the avenues through which its activities found expression. Above all, she believed that good existed in the most depraved, and the prisoner in confinement had no better friend than she. At the age of thirteen years she united with the Christian church and has lived a consistent Christian life ever since. Her life was devoted to good deeds, to the uplifting of the sinful and downtrodden and to the betterment of the social conditions of the community. Her example is a bright and

It was dated May 16, 1899, and left the home place to her daughter, Laura, for life with remainder to her other two children, H.D. Ecton and Mrs. E.S. Jouett. Should Laura marry her life interest is to cease and the property be equally divided. She also left Laura $1,250, the testator's portion of her husband's life insurance; also all household effects, silver, china, pictures etc. Miss Laura Ecton qualified as executrix with E.S. Jouett as surety. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, December 29, 1908

Ecton, Robert Stonestreet		Death of Robert Ecton. Four weeks ago last Tuesday, while returning from a ball game, a difficulty arose in which Henry Besuden and Robert Stonestreet Ecton were each shot by Lee Bates, a young Negro. Besuden quickly recovered, but Mr. Ecton, after an heroic struggle for life finally succumbed and Tuesday morning he died at the home of his aunt, Mrs. G. W. Strother,

	where he was taken when shot and where he had since remained. Public sympathy was greatly aroused and during his days of suffering inquiries concerning his condition were numerous and earnest. Everything that medical skill could suggest was done, but the end was apparent from the beginning to those skilled in such wounds. The funeral was held Wednesday at the Methodist Church, the funeral services being conducted by the pastor Rev. G. H. Means, and the remains were buried in the Winchester cemetery. The funeral procession was one of the largest ever seen in our city and attested the high esteem in which the deceased was held. He was the son of Chas. B. He was unmarried and leaves a father, mother, brothers and sister besides a host of friends. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, May 23, 1902 Circuit Court The most important case is that of Lee Bates, the young negro, who will be tried for the murder of Robert Ecton and the shooting of Henry Besuden. The Winchester Democrat Fri., Sept. 19, 1902 Circuit Court The most important case of the term was that of Lee Bates charged with the murder of Robert Ecton. His attorney, J. M. Stevenson, made strenuous efforts for a continuance, but without avail, and the trial began Wednesday afternoon. The Winchester Democrat Fri., Oct. 3, 1902 The Verdict. For several days the attention of the Circuit Court has been engrossed by the trial of Lee Bates, colored, for the murder of Robert Ecton. The evidence was concluded Friday, and John M. Stevenson, the defendant's attorney, made a very effective speech for his client. Court then adjourned until the following morning, when Col. Charlie Bronston spoke for the prosecution. The case was then given to the jury, but as hour after hour passed, it was rumored that the jury could not agree. Shortly before dark they agreed on a verdict of manslaughter and fixed the punishment at two years in the penitentiary. It developed afterward that nine of the jury were in favor of acquittal and the other three for imprisonment from twenty-one years down. The decision was a surprise to many who had expected a severe sentence, and rumors of an attempt at lynching reached the ears of the Court and Sheriff. To prevent anything of this kind, Judge Benton had the prisoner brought before him and sentenced him. Deputy Sheriff Stokely put him in a buggy and carried him to Flanagan in time to catch the L. & N. train for Richmond where he was lodged in jail that night, and from whence he was carried to Lexington next day. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, October 7, 1902 Circuit Court The trial of Lee Bates, charged with the murder of Robert Ecton was called. There was some difficulty in getting a jury. The following gentlemen were finally empanelled: Jas. McCourt, Wm. Harris, C. G. Bush, Marion Dawson, Henry Wright, W. P. Azbill, J. B. Carroll, W. E. Dean, Sam F. Moore, B. F. Tapp, Ab Haggard, Johnson Aldridge. The prosecution was assisted by Charlie Bronston of Lexington. The defense was conducted by J. M. Stevenson. The jury rendered a verdict late Saturday evening giving him two years in the penitentiary. It is said that nine of the jury were for acquittal but agreed for the lowest penalty. The jurors were all discharged. The term is practically ended. The Winchester Sentinel Wed. Oct. 8, 1902

Ecton, William H.	Death of W. H. Ecton. Everybody in the city and nearly everybody in the county knew William H. Ecton, and all who knew him liked him. Hence his death, although not unexpected, was a shock to

	our people. For many years he had suffered from rheumatism and of late his heart had failed to properly perform its functions and dropsy had ensued. At an early hour Friday morning the end came without pain, and with all his faculties unimpaired to the last moment, he passed to the Great Beyond. He was born in this county sixty-one years ago and had always lived here. He had been in various kinds of business but for a number of years he had been a leader in the clothing business. Many years ago he united with the Christian Church and had lived as a Christian man should. At the time of his death he was a deacon and had been for a long time previous. The funeral was preached at the First Christian church by Eld. I. J. Spencer, of Lexington, and the remains were carried to the cemetery for interment. The audience was one of the largest ever assembled in the Church. He leaves a wife, formerly Miss Jennie Jackson, a son, H. Dewees Ecton, of Minneapolis, Minn., and two daughters, Mrs. E. S. Jouett and Miss Laura Ecton, of this city, to mourn their great loss, and to whom we extend sympathy in their hour of trouble. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, June 14, 1898 Administrator's Sale of Clothing, Etc. The administrator's sale of the late W. H. Ecton's stock of clothing, hats and men's furnishings is advertised in this issue. Everything will be sold regardless of the sacrifice, and as the stock is fresh and up to date, it will present perhaps, the greatest opportunity for bargains ever known in Winchester in this line. Eginton, Charles	As we go to press we learn of the death of Chas. Eginton at Covington, aged 76 years. He came to Winchester from Pennsylvania in 1833 and for fifty years was a member of the local bar of this city. He leaves an estate of probably $300,000. A more extensive notice of his life will appear in our next. The Winchester Democrat; Wednesday, September 24, 1890 The Hon. Charles Eginton As stated in our last, Charles Eginton died at his home in Covington last Tuesday morning, aged 76 years, dying on the anniversary of his birth. He was a native of Philadelphia and the child of poor parents. In early life he learned the tailor's trade, but his health failing he came to Kentucky in 1833, at the instance of Jas. D. Duncan, a merchant of this city. He first taught a school near Matthew Hume's and then came to this city to clerk for Alex. Preston at a salary of $100 a year. While his education was limited, he was a natural orator, and at the instance of Judge Simpson, he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1836. He soon took a front rank among such legal giants as Judge Simpson, Sam Hanson, Gen. Huston and others who made the Winchester bar of that time, the strongest in the State. He drifted into politics, being at first a Whig, and when that party broke up, a Republican. He was a delegate to the famous convention that nominated Clay and Frelinghuysen, and as an elector, stumped the district for them. He was a candidate for Congress from this district against the late Senator Beck, and afterward from the Covington district against, we believe, Mr. Carlisle. In early life he was City Attorney of Winchester, it being so far as we know, the only office to which he was ever elected. In 1855 he was a candidate for the Legislature in a triangular contest, the other candidates being Jno C. Hunton, of Kiddville, and Stephen Eubank, Sr., of Pinchem. Hunton beat Eginton six votes and was elected. Hunton was considered a sort of a demagogue and had tried to commit suicide a short time before. While in the Legislature he made a spread-eagle speech which started the agitation that ultimately led to the formation of our present constitution. Shortly after attaining his majority, Mr. Eginton married Sarah Louisa, a daughter of Reuben T. Taylor, of this county, and one of the purest, most unselfish and lovely wives with which man was ever blest, and who, after more than fifty years of wedded life, survives him. Two children of this marriage died in infancy, one married Raymond Gray, Esq., now of Covington, and died in early womanhood. The other, Thos. Eginton, a distinguished lawyer of this city, died while yet a young man. In 1837 he joined Winchester Lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., being the first man initiated after the great anti-Masonic excitement attendant upon the disappearance of Morgan, of New York. He was twice Grand Master of that body in this State, being the fourth

	Grand Master that Winchester Lodge has given the order, the others being Asa K. Lewis, Chilton Allan and John B. Huston. In religion he was a Methodist and he gave substantial aid in building the Methodist church of this city and also to the Kentucky Wesleyan College. For the last twenty years he has resided in Covington, but was a frequent visitor here and took a lively interest in the growth and progress of our city. He was a good business man and was worth at the time of his death, between three and four hundred thousand dollars. His grand-daughter, Miss Louise Eginton, is his only living descendant, and will probably be one of the wealthiest young ladies in the State. Mr. Eginton was buried Friday at Covington with grand Masonic honors. At a meeting of Winchester Lodge No. 20, F. and A. M. Tuesday night the following resolutions were adopted: WHEREAS; It has pleased the Grand Master of the Universe to call our beloved Brother, Charles Eginton, from the scene of his earthly labors to the celestial lodge above therefore be it Resolved, That in the death of Brother Eginton, Masonry has lost a zealous advocate and one of her brightest ornaments; that this lodge has lost a friend whose interest in our welfare has always been manifested and whose absence is deeply deplored. 2d. That we tender our sympathy to the bereaved family, that a copy of these resolutions be sent them and that they also be spread upon the minutes of this lodge. 3d. That The Winchester Democrat, Winchester Sun and Covington Commonwealth be requested to publish these proceedings: J. A. Ramsey, Beach Graham W. A. Attersall, I. Bloom, Geo. Richter, C. E. Lyddane The Winchester Democrat; Wednesday, October 1, 1890 THE most eminent lawyers fall very frequently in writing their own will. Samuel Tilden's was in court for many years and was finally broken and other cases equally prominent might be mentioned. As a case in point, Judge Geo. B. Nelson, as attorney for F. H. Dudley, has brought suit in the Covington court asking the court to construe the will of the late Chas. Eginton, while Mr. Eginton was property regarded as one of our ablest lawyers, the executor finds several provisions in his will that leaves the exact meaning of the testator in doubt and on which it is necessary to have the opinion of the court. The personal estate of Mr. Eginton was appraised at $ 137,045.42 and his real estate will amount to $ 80,000 or $ 40,000 more. The bulk of this was left to his wife, Mrs. Sarah Eginton and his granddaughter, Miss Louise Eginton, although various sums were left to relatives in various portions of this State, Texas, Illinois, Pennsylvania and other places. Among the beneficiaries living in this county are several members of the Taylor family, the children of F. H. Dudley and the widow and children of the late Parker Dudley. The Covington papers say that the litigation thus begun will be protracted. The Democrat, Wednesday, November 26, 1890. The will of the late Charles Eginton was of such a nature that the executor, F. H. Dudley felt it necessary to institute a suit for the purpose of having the terms of the will construed by the court. The case will be called in the Chancery Court at Covington Friday. Mr. Dudley and his attorney, Judge G. B. Nelson, Jas. F. Winn, Attorney for Miss Louise Eginton, and J. N. Winn, her trustee, will attend from here. The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, February 4, 1891

Eginton, Mrs. Sarah L.	DIED-Mrs. Sarah Louise Eginton, widow of the late Charles Eginton, died at her home in Lexington yesterday morning of pneumonia, aged 81 years. She was a Miss Taylor, of this county, a daughter of Reuben Taylor and the last of a large family of brothers and sisters. The remains will be taken to Covington for burial The Winchester Democrat. Tuesday, February 16, 1897. Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Vaught, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Dudley and son Matt, Mrs. Lizzie Dudley, Frank Dudley, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gilkey, Taylor Jackson and Fred Pfeiffer attended the funeral of Mrs. Sarah L. Eginton at Covington Wednesday. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, February 19, 1897 Wills Probated The wills of Mrs. Sarah L. Eginton and her sister, Miss Mary T. Taylor, were probated Monday, F. H. Dudley being named in each as executor. Mrs. Eginton recites the fact that most of property had been distributed and that her estate would consist of only the unspent income from the life interest of the property left by her husband, Charles Eginton. Mr. Dudley as trustee was directed to use this in beautifying and improving the cemetery lot. The will was dated in May, 1896. Miss Mary Taylor's will was made in December, 1894. She leaves $100 to Raymond C. Gray and the remainder to her brothers and sisters, the children of those dead to receive the share that would otherwise have gone to the parents. Those mentioned are Francis T. Taylor, Ann H. Dudley, James Taylor, Hubbard Taylor, Catherine Taylor, Edmund Taylor, Sarah L. Eginton, Reuben Taylor and John Taylor. The second wife of Francis Taylor and her children are not to participate and the share left to Parker Dudley is to be invested for his children. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, February 26, 1897

Eginton, Thomas M.	We are under the painful necessity this morning of chronicling the sudden death of our esteemed fellow citizen, Thos. M. Edington. Mr. Eginton has been on a trip to Minnesota with his family for several weeks. Yesterday Mr. F. H. Dudley received a telegram stating that Mr. Edington had died in Minnetonka, at 10 o'clock Wednesday night, but no particulars were given. The sad news flashed over town immediately and caused a universal depression, for Mr. Edington was one of our most valued and esteemed citizens. He will be buried at Covington. The Semi-Weekly Sun Fri., 7-11-1879 The remains of the late Thomas M. Edington reached Covington at 7:30 o'clock, Wednesday morning, where they were met and escorted to the final resting place, in Linden Grove Cemetery, by a large procession of Odd Fellows and Knights Templars of that city and the relatives and friends of the deceased. The burial services were conducted at the grave by Revs. W. W. Ramsey, Thomas Dodd, and G. C. Kelly. The beautiful and appropriate ceremony of the Odd Fellows, and also that of the Masonic Order were read. The body was then lowered to its last resting-place, in the beautiful family lot of the deceased's father, where his ashes will rest with those of his sister who went before him. The Semi-Weekly Sun Fri., 7-11-1879 Thos. Eginton, whose sad and untimely death was noticed in our last issue, was one of the first men of Kentucky. He was brave, intelligent and generous, and though but in the prime of young manhood, he occupied a leading position at the bar and in politics. Had his policies been more in accordance with those of the community in which he lived he might have attained high distinction in that line, young as he was. But his views led him to take a different stand; and in that his conduct was such as to win him the praise, the esteem, and the admiration of his opponents. At the late State Republican Convention at Louisville he came within a few votes of receiving the nomination for Lieutenant Governor, and this is the more complimentary to him from the fact that he did not seek the nomination. For a number of years he has been Register in Bankruptcy for this District, and has discharged the onerous duties of that position faithfully and satisfactorily. Mr. Edinton had hosts of friends among all classes and the news of his death came upon his people with a painful shock, and the grief of the community is universal and sincere. The Semi-Weekly Sun 7-15-1879 It seems impossible to get any further particulars concerning the death of Thos. M. Eginton. It is supposition that his body was embalmed at Minneapolis, and that it will reach Covington Wednesday and be buried there about 12 o'clock the same day; but this is merely conjecture. He died of bilious colic. The Semi-Weekly Sun Tuesday July 15, 1879 Resolutions of Respect. The members of the Winchester bar met at the court house yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, and after calling Col. Jas. Flanagan to the chair, passed the following resolution in regard to the death of Thos. M. Eginton: The members of the bar at Winchester, having learned with unfeigned sorrow of the sudden death of their friend and brother, Thos. M. Eginton, in the midst of a life so full of hope and promise, as a token of their regard for his memory do resolve; 1st; That we have the kindest and most affectionate remembrance of our professional intercourse with him during the brief period in which his short life permitted us to be associated together. 2d; That we bear the most sincere testimony to the honor, courtesy and fairness of his conduct as a lawyer and to the faithful, laborious and earnest manner in which he uniformly discharged the onerous and responsible duties of the office of Register in Bankruptcy. 3d; That we utter no words of idle flattery, but speak what we feel to be just and true when we commend his generous, liberal, manly disposition: his temperate, industrious habits; his clear, practical sense; his active, earnest, sanguine temperament: and his ardent, unselfish devotion to the interests of his friends. 4th; Time we extend to his bereaved family our tenderest sympathy, and take the liberty of mingling our tears with theirs on an occasion which, sad and distressing as it must be to them, is also one of unaffected grief to us. They lose an affectionate husband, a devoted father and a dutiful son. We part with a true friend, a kind neighbor, and a public-spirited fellow-citizen who had no littleness in his nature, and one in whom we never placed our confidence in vain. 5th; that the Chairman of this meeting be directed to report these resolutions to the Circuit and Common Place Courts of this county and that the newspapers of Winchester, Lexington, and Covington be requested to give them a place in their columns. These resolutions were unanimously adopted, and after eulogistic speeches by several members of the bar, the meeting adjourned. Jas. Klanagan, Chm'n. Geo. Osborn, Sec. deceased husband, Thos. M. Eginton, the appointment was given to Hon. Chas. Eginton, who has qualified for the position, with F. H. Dudley and J. N. Winn as sureties.
The Semi-Weekly Sun Tuesday July 22, 1879

H. W. Kohlhass, Frank R. Adams, and George M. Jackson have been appointed to appraise that portion of the estate of Thos. M. Eginton, dec'd., lying in Minnesota. John Catherwood, Lewis Adams and J. H. Croxton have been appointed to appraise said decedent's estate in this county.
The Semi-Weekly Sun Tuesday July 22, 1879

OBITUARY-Hon. T. M. Eginton was born in Winchester, Ky. On the 20th day of March 1846, of parents belonging to the historic stock of the country. His father, the Hon. Charles Edington, came from a family whose name is blended with the foundation, rise and progress of Philadelphia, and is fully identified with every public measure that has given that city her national honors and reputation. His mother was a daughter of Reuben Taylor. Of this county, (than whom a purer and better man never lived), closely allied to Gen. Zack Taylor, one of our Presidents. Combining the energy and honor of one and the amiability and grandeur of the other, T. M. Eginton filed the short space of his life giving full credit to both. Educated in one of the best schools in Kentucky, and a graduate of the Cambridge Law School when he was just of age, he entered upon a career most remarkable for its success financially, socially and at the bar. He soon married Miss Kate Winn, a lady of rare accomplishments, and a daughter of one of our first citizens, and then he took in Europe on an extended bridal tour. Returning to his native county he devoted himself to his profession and to his duties as Register in Bankruptcy. At the bar always courteous and urbane, he commanded the respect of his compeers and soon stood at the head of his profession. As Register before whom many fiercely contested cases were brought such was his fairness and judicial integrity that his decisions were never questioned. As a man he was trustworthy, honored and esteemed. As a friend he was true as the "needle to the pole." To the poor he ever lent a willing ear and showed an open hand. Devoted to his wife and child, joyous and loved in all his social relations, pure in his character, upright and honorable in every part of his life, esteemed by all that knew him, he has passed to the higher life and at rest with his God.

Eisberg, Gus	A few days ago Sheriff Heck was in the county looking for John Stephens who was wanted for murder in Virginia. The following from the Mt. Sterling Gazette shows that he finally found his man.. "John Stephens murdered Gus Eisberg in cold blood. Thursday, April 2nd, in Botetourt county, Va.. He fled to this county and stopped with his father on Clay Lick for a few days and becoming frightened went to Estill county where he had relatives. S. L. Heck, sheriff of Botetourt county came here last week and offered a reward for Stevens of $100. He had already been arrested by Irvine authorities and was brought here Friday. Saturday night Heck took him to Virginia to stand trial for his crime. Stevens is also wanted in this county for arson. Last November he and one Wm. Spears burned the residence of Newton Laudthrow on Clay Lick, whom they had a grudge against. Spears was arrested sometime ago by Capt. Pat Punch and is in jail here awaiting trial." Eiseler, Henry	At Louisville, Henry Eiseler blew out his brains after a brief career of reckless extravagance and debauchery. Three years ago he became of age and received his patrimony of $50,000 in cash, and in two years had squandered it all in gambling, drinking and on women. He then went to work as a common laborer and after a few months of toll, finding it difficult to get along, ended his miserable life in the above manner. There is a moral to this tale, but it will not be heeded by the large number of young men who are drifting rapidly in his footsteps. The Democrat, Wednesday, August 24, 1892.

Elkin, Ernest	A sad event Ernest Elkin instantly killed Saturday by road machine – Funeral largely attended In carrying out its contract with the Fiscal court, The Clark County Construction Company has been engaged for some time in reconstructing the Lexington pike near the Fayette line. A large traction engine and roller, draws a train of cars loaded with crushed stone. This stone is delivered through the bottom of the car, the delivery being controlled by a crank on the side of the car, between the front and rear wheels. Saturday afternoon, Ernest Elkin, an employee of the company was manipulating this lever when

	his foot was caught by the hind wheel which passed over his body crushing out his life. The remains were brought to the undertaking establishment of H.H. Hall, and after being prepared for burial were taken to his home in this city. The funeral was held at the Washing Street Presbyterian church, Sunday afternoon, under the auspices of the Local Camp Modern Woodmen of America, assisted by Hickman Lodge of Odd Fellows, he being a member of both orders. Services were conducted by Rev. C.E. Crafton, pastor of the church. The funeral procession was an extremely long one and attested the esteem in which he was held. He was raised in Mt. Sterling and was thirty-three years of age. He was a son of Wm. Elkin, formerly of this county, and has a great many relatives here. He leaves a wife, formerly Miss Ringo, and two daughters, aged twelve and nine years. He carried one thousand dollars insurance in the Woodmen. The trip when he was killed was to have been his last trip on the road, as he was to have taken a position in the yards on the following Monday. The sympathy of our people go out to the stricken family. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, June 14, 1910 Coroner's inquest Coroner Nunnelley held an inquest over the body of Ernest Elkin who was killed Saturday. The jury was composed of T.F. Moore, A.W. Planck, W.H. Brock, T.W. Brock, R.F. Scobee, L.A. Ramsey, whose verdict stated that he came to his death from being run over by a rock wagon of the Clark County Construction Company and that it was not the fault of any one. The Winchester Democrat Friday, June 17, 1910 Quick work The officers at Raleigh Camp No. 11406, Modern Woodmen of America, delivered to Mrs. Amanda Elkin, on Friday June 24th, a draft for $1,000 just thirteen days after his death. This was in payment of the Benefit Certificate held by Mr. Ernest Elkin in that Society, he having been a member less than ten months, and having paid during that time, $10 10. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, June 28, 1910

Elkin, F.	Age 32, female, she was married, she was born in Virginia, she lived in Clark County, KY, her fathers name was Armstead Blackwell, she died September 16, 1857 in Clark County KY, apply. CCKD
Elkin, F. Clay	F. Clay Elkin. F. Clay Elkin, post master at Lexington, died suddenly Tuesday afternoon at 5:20 o'clock of heart trouble at his home in Lexington. He was apparently in good health, although he had not been strong for some time and was at his work Monday night until 8 o'clock, and after dinner seemed far removed from such an unexpected taking off. The last words he said were spoken to his wife. After playing with his children, lifting and kissing them he turned wearily and said: "I feel like I am going to sleep." It was the sleep of death. The maiden name of his mother was Minerva Wood a native of Estill county. Mr. Elkin was a native of this county. His grandfather, James Elkin was for many years magistrate and was a man of superior standing and intelligence. His father, Z. F. Elkin, moved to Lexington from the Eastern part of this county. Mr. Elkin had the distinction, at the time of being appointed postmaster at Lexington, in 1898, of being the youngest postmaster of a first class office in the world. He was then 27. He was re-appointed postmaster by President McKinley in 1902. He was intensely partisan in politics and a born leader and had he lived would have attained distinction. He was past exalted ruler of the Lexington Lodge of Elks, Past Commander of Markey Tent, 108 Macabees. He was also a member of the Woodmen of the World, Knights Pythias and Odd Fellows, and was formerly president of the chamber of commerce, of which organization he was an active member. The Republican party has lost one of its brightest young men and the State one of whom it could be justly proud. The funeral will take place at the late residence of Mr. Elkin at 4 p.m. today. Services by Eld. W. H. Felix of the Baptist church. The ceremony of the Elks will be performed at the grave in the Lexington cemetery. The Sun-Sentinel, Thursday, August 17, 1905

They brought their pastor, their books and their organization with them. They stopped on the way and held divine services that there the pastor broke the _____ his people on each Sabbath _____ during the week he labored _____ support and that _____ were not _____ salary did not disturb him for, like Paul, he labored with his own hands. Occasionally, a good sister presented him with a new pair of socks or a linsey jacket of her own manufacture. He died as he lived, without ostentation and his remains now lie buried in a blue grass pasture, unfenced and unmarked. If any one deserves a monument, it is the one who, amid the hardships of a pioneer's life, planted the seeds of Gospel truth which in these later years have borne such abundant harvests. The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, February 21, 1894 "Speaking of that PROWLER plan to erect a monument to the Clark county pioneers, which I commend so heartily that my contribution is ready when called for," said a well-known citizen to THE PROWLER, "It would also call the attention of certain religious persons to a lonely grave seven or eight miles out the Boonesboro pike. In an open pasture there, lies what remains of Robert Elkin, the pioneer Baptist preacher of Clark county, if not of the entire State. Elkin brought an organized church with him from Virginia over one hundred and twenty years ago and it settled and built the old stone church on Howards' Lower Creek, near where the pioneer now sleeps. His was the life of self sacrifice and toil for the cause, and seeing that the Baptists of that day scarcely gave him bread, it is as little as those of today can do to give him a stone. There are fifteen hundred more or less followers in the county at present and they surely ought to be able and willing to spend two or three hundred dollars in a monument to him, where he lies, or better still, bring his dust to the Winchester Cemetery and there place beneath a fitting memorial stone. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, November 19, 1897. Should have monument

	Remains of Rev. Robt. Elkin, Pioneer Baptist preacher of Kentucky, rest in an unmarked grave in this county In these days of monuments in memory of men who have done things for their fellow men, no memory is more worthy of honor than a pioneer Baptist preacher, Rev. Robert Elkin. His was the only instance in the history of our State where a church emigrated as such. He was a pastor for years of Providence church, of this county, the first church in this section of the State and as such did much to give form and character to the young commonwealth. He was a born leader of men and stood for that which was just and right at a time when there was little law and great temptation to forget the foundation principles of Christianity. His remains are buried not far from the present location of the church he loved and served, in a bluegrass pasture, and unmarked save by a simple limestone headstone, and nothing to distinguish it from other graves around it. Very few, if any of those now living, can point with certainty to the grave, and the Baptists of the State should rescue from the oblivion which will soon envelop it, the last resting place of one who did so much for the State and for his church. The Winchester Democrat Friday, February 25, 1910

Ellerman, William	Instantly Killed. A Louisville Gravedigger Was Shot Through the Heart While Abusing His Family. Louisville, Ky., Dec. 17.—William Ellerman, a grave digger at Cave Hill cemetery, was shot and instantly killed at his home, 731 Coke street, Sunday night. The identity of the man who fired the shot is not known, but William Newrad and John Pearce, who left the house only a few minutes before, are suspected. The shooting is the result of a quarrel between the dead man and his wife. They began quarrelling early Sunday evening, and it is said that Newrad and Pearce, who were visiting Mrs. Ellerman's daughter, Miss Nellie Manchart, took the part of the woman. This angered Ellerman, and he ordered the men to leave the place. This they did, after which Ellerman began abusing the girl. Finally she was forced to leave the house, making her exit through the front door, with Ellerman in pursuit. She ran down the street screaming. When Ellerman reached the gate a shot rang out and he fell dead, the bullet having pierced his heart. Mrs. Ellerman said Sunday night that she did not believe her husband had been shot by either Newrad or Pearce. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, December 25, 1900
Ellington, Dock	Mysterious Murder Near Limerick, Bourbon county. Friday morning, Dock Ellington was found dead in an orchard by Miss Pearl Crouch, adjoining the home of her father, W. G. Crouch. Both eyes were shot out and fifty or sixty shot lodged in his face. Ellington was dressed in his best clothes and had on kid gloves. October 11th W. O. Crouch and Dock Ellington quarreled, and Ellington shot Crouch in the leg from which wound Crouch is now at the point of death. Ellington was engaged to Miss Pearl Crouch and letters found on the dead man's person written in words of endearment by the young woman telling Ellington to be careful to not get into trouble, that they would have to wait, as her father was about to die. Saturday, the Sheriff of Bourbon county, as a result of the investigation made thus far, arrested on suspicion Pearl Crouch, Ellington's sweetheart, Nick Fletcher and Ike Crouch, the girl's brother. The girl and Ike Crouch were both released on $1,000 bail, but Nick Fletcher went to jail unable to give bond. Both these boys are only 20 years old. The story of the Sheriff is that Ellington was assassinated, and that the girl and two boys were concerned in the conspiracy against his life. He thinks that old man Crouch devised the plan, and that Ellington was decoyed to the place through a message from the girl conveyed through Nick Fletcher, that if he would come on that night she would meet him and elope. He came only to be shot down in cold blood from ambush by Nick Fletcher or Ike Crouch or both. The kind of clothing worn by Ellington is a strong circumstance in support of this theory. He was dressed in best clothes and had evidently prepared to carry off his intended bride. His underwear, shirt, collar and so on were new and he wore a pair of kid gloves. There is considerable excitement over the affair and further developments are awaited with the most intense interest. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, November 5, 1895

Elliott, John M.	It is reported that Mrs. Elliott, widow of the late Judge John M. Elliott, will be a candidate for State Librarian. The Semi-Weekly Sun Fri., 1-28-1879 The news of the cold-blooded murder of Judge John M. Elliott by Tom Buford came upon our people like a clap of thunder from a clear sky. The fact seemed incomprehensible and hard to grasp. At first but few could realize that the enormous crime had really been committed. It seemed incredible that a Judge should be shot unto death on account of the rendition of a judicial opinion. Such a crime is unknown in the previous history of the world, and it is enough to startle us. The Dark and Bloody Ground, it seems, must always be worthy of it's name. Terrible crimes occur in our State every day, but this last one far transcends all the others. It was brutal, and worse than brutal, and that it should have occurred within the borders of Kentucky is enough to cause the blush of shame to mantle the cheek of every Kentuckian. Will we never suppress our ruffians and desperadoes, and let our better population appear to the world? Must it always be the case that Kentucky shall be known from her murderers, and that her name must be synonymous with murder? Justice hath been most grievously wronged, and most grievously must we avenge it. Innocent blood calls to us from the ground for vengeance! When our Judges are shot down on the bench, what may we not look for next? This thing has gone far enough; in fact, it has gone entirely too far. If Kentucky produces more murderers than any other State, she also produces more hemp than any other; and the eternal fitness of things suggests that she should utilize them both for the general good of society. Enforce the laws. Too long has the arm of justice been paralyzed and nerveless; it has no terrors for anybody, because nobody has been made to feel its terrors. But the law can be no longer ignored; it must be enforced before we relapse into social chaos. Let the murderers all swing regardless of family of family or other considerations. We must purify the moral atmosphere of our State, and it can be done in no other way than by the strict enforcement of the laws; for when the people realize that the highest as well as the lowest transgressors must suffer the extreme penalties of the law, then will crime practically cease. This last great crime which has been perpetrated in our borders—the cold-blooded murder of an Appellate Judge—will shock the nation, and well it may, for never before has America known so heinous, so terrible a crime. Judge Elliott was one of the best, lawyers upon the Appellate Bench, and was noted for his fairness and impartiality. He knew no such thing as prejudice; but invariably sunk selfish considerations entirely out of sight whilst acting in his judicial capacity, and religiously strove to do his duty. He was a plain, blunt, honest gentleman and the people among whom he lived, loved and revered him as devotees love and reverence their patron saints. The life of John M. Elliott was blameless at least as much so as any man's life can be. His terrible death will be hard for his friends to bear, for they loved him, with all their hearts. It is whispered already that the mob will avenge his murder. We trust it may not, for the affair is already black and outrageous enough. Let the law take its course. The murderer surely cannot escape for his crime was too unwarrantable and too bold to admit of any plausible defense; and the honor of the State and the safety of the Judiciary demand that this criminal shall not go unwhipped of justice.

The Governor will appoint some competent man to fill the vacancy in the Appellate Bench caused by the death of Judge Elliott, from now until the first Monday in August, at which time an incumbent will be elected for the remainder of the unexpired term.

A Terrible Crime

We publish below a special telegram from Frankfort to the Lexington Transcript of Wednesday, giving the particulars of the murder of Judge John M. Elliott, of the Court of Appeals, from this district, by Tom Buford, of Henry county, a brother of Gen. Abe Buford:

Frankfort, March 26th, 1879

Judge John M. Elliott, of the Court Of Appeals, was murdered in cold blood at 1:15 P. M., today by Major Thomas Buford, of Henry county. Judge Elliott had decided a case of Buford's against him, and loading a

DOUBLE-BARREL SHOT GUN

With buckshot, Buford took his station near the Capitol Hotel and waited for Elliott to come to his dinner. Elliott came to the hotel and was standing near the private entrance, when Buford came up, and asking Judge Elliott to go and have a drink with him, discharged one barrel of the gun before the Judge had time to reply, killing him instantly. Buford looked down at him as he fell, saying,

“DIE LIKE A MAN,”

Then walked away. Buford was arrested in a few moments after and taken to Squire Gwinn's office, where he made his will, saying that he expected to be mobbed, and left his property to his niece who lives in Woodford county. While in the office Buford remarked: “There are twelve buckshot in Elliott. If you don't believe it go and take them out. I put them there. I put twelve more in the other barrel for

JUDGE PRYOR

And would have used them, too, but there were some children in the way.” Buford is in jail, and there is considerable excitement on the street, with some talk of a mob. It is the most cold blooded murder ever committed in the city. Roundabout

“To the People of the First Appellate District”
The deplorable death of Judge Elliott has imposed upon you the duty of selecting a successor to fill his unexpired term. The Governor has issued his proclamation fixing Monday, May 12, 1879, as the day on which such choice shall be made. Resting upon the judgement of many of my professional brethren and friends, I announce myself as a candidate—subject to such action as the Democratic party may take—for this important and laborious office. If chosen to take the place of my lamented friend, I will strive to be worthy to wear his mantle and to bring to the faithful and conscientious discharge of the high trust all the ability I may possess. The trial of Tom Buford, indicted for the brutal murder of Judge Elliott began yesterday at Frankfort, a special term of Circuit Court having been called by Judge McNamara for that purpose. Mr. Curtis, the reputed great “emotional insanity” lawyer, of New York, is in the city, and will defend the murderer. Curtis volunteered his services, and will pay hie own expenses.

The Semi-Weekly Sun, Winchester, Ky. Tuesday, April 29, 1879

Buford’s trial has been postponed until May 19th.
The Semi-Weekly Sun, Winchester, Ky. Friday, May 2, 1879

It is understood that Thomas Buford’s counsel, when his case is called, on the 19th, will make a motion for a continuance, and in the event that Judge McNamara overrules it, then they will apply for a change of venue.
The Semi-Weekly Sun, Winchester, Ky. May 13, 1879

Col. Tom Buford was brought to Frankfort yesterday for trial. It was generally understood that he would apply for a change of venue.

The trial of Thomas Buford will commence at Owenton next Tuesday.
The Semi-Weekly Sun Friday, July 4, 1879

The trial of Tom Buford at Owenton is under full headway. A number of Commonwealth witnesses have already been examined, but the case will not go to the jury sooner than three weeks from now. The trial will cost the State $300 a day.
The Semi-Weekly Sun Tuesday July 15, 1879

Tom Buford, it appears, is not so crazy, after all. The Commonwealth has produced numbers of reliable witnesses in rebuttal, who don’t think Buford is crazy, or ever was. The probability is that the jury will decide for once in accordance with the law and the evidence and let the diabolical assassin stretch hemp.

Buford’s lawyer’s expected a hung-jury. The moral sense of the State and the Country at large expected a hung Buford.
The Semi-Weekly Sun Friday July 25, 1879

The Owenton lunacy farce closed Wednesday. The jury sentenced Tom Buford to the penitentiary for life. Language is too feeble to adequately express the contempt in which that jury should be held. If Buford didn’t deserve hanging, no man ever did. Is justice a farce?
The Semi-Weekly Sun Friday July 25, 1879

The Cincinnati Gazette claims that Buford was convicted through its influence. The Gazette’s cheek would resist the seductive influence of a pile-driver in full operation.
The Semi-Weekly Sun Friday July 25, 1879

Tom Buford has applied for a trial before the Court of appeals. If it is granted and the Court decides against him, the probability is that he will unlimber his buckshot and kill all the Appellate Judges.

The Semi-Weekly Sun Friday July 25, 1879

The Courier-Journal is mistaken. The Sun does not demand Buford's blood, but plain justice demanded it and was cheated.
The Semi-Weekly Sun Tuesday July 29, 1879

The trial of that distinguished lunatic, Tom Buford, commenced in Owenton, last Tuesday. Buford has been taken from the Louisville jail to Owenton, and it is announced that the trial will certainly go on, although there is a disposition on the part of some of the parties to have a continuance. About three hundred witnesses have been summoned, and the cost to the State will be immense, as the trial will certainly last from three to six weeks. The murder of Judge Elliott, outside of its pernicious moral effect, will cost the State thousands of dollars, and the whole matter will about result in the murderer being adjudged lunatic and turned loose upon society. He is a very dangerous kind of lunatic. The "insanity dodge" is wearing thin, anyhow; and a few good hangings would thin the ranks of the insane faster than any lunatic asylum in the country could do it.

Tom Buford (Lexington Press.)
Col. John A. Prall, one of the counsel for Tom Buford, being asked about the status of the case in the Court of Appeals, said in substance, that he and Col. Thompson had attended the Court on Tuesday when the case was called up by the Attorney-General. The Judges, not having had time to consult, continued the case until Thursday, when they would make known their decision as to the part they would take in the proceedings. It is very probable that the Judges will Present a certificate to the Governor of their incompetency to act on account of interest in the result. To do this they put the broadest construction upon the mending of the words "interest in the result," which by the constitution would render a judge ineligible to preside at the trial of an appeal. The certificate will probably be accompanied by an arguement upholding the position taken by the court. In the event of a special court being created it is not known who will be chosen to compose it, and furthermore, the Governor says he has made up his mind as to who they will be, and does not want any suggestions on that point. He is willing to hear arguments, however, on the power of the executive to create the court under the Constitution.
The Semi-Weekly Sun Friday October 10, 1879

The Clerk of the Court of Appeals Tuesday notified the special Judges who have been commissioned to try the Buford case, all of whom have accepted, that the present Court would vacate the bench on Monday, November 10, so they may try the case.

Tom Buford
The Decision of the Lower Court Reversed
The Special Court of Appeals in the case of Thomas Buford, Monday, delivered an opinion reversing the decision of Lower court in the case of Thomas Buford from Owen County. The grounds of the reversal are the refusal of the Lower Court to grant a continuance upon the affidavit of the absence of sixty-seven important witnesses who would prove the insanity of the defendant at the time of the murder, and upon the refusal of the court to admit the testimony of Drs. Gale and Killer.
Chief Justice Husbands dissents from the opinion, and among other things takes the ground that the insanity of the defendant, not having been asserted to be temporary, the court has no means of knowing whether the affidavit of the defendant is made by a sane man. A new trial is granted.
Council for Buford testified that upon another trial he cannot be convicted. Judge McNamara before whom the case was tried, is not in love with the decision. He is of the opinion that the defense was allowed every legal privilege. The case excites widespread comment.
The Semi-Weekly Sun December 12, 1879

No section of the State can show a sadder official record than death has made in Eastern Kentucky within less than twenty years. First, Judge John M. Elliott, of the Court of Appeals, fell dead on our streets at the hands of an assassin, afterwards sentenced to

	death and later declared insane. Judge Richard Reid, of Mt. Sterling, of the Superior Court, died by his own hand. Senators Joseph Garder, R. M. Pieratt and James S. Hargis died while in the performance of their official duties. Congressman W. P. Taulbee was killed in Washington; Judge Van B. Young, of the Superior Court, was scarcely at rest in the grave before Congressman J. W. Kendall followed him. It is a mournful record, which all will hope may never be repeated elsewhere.----Frankfort Capital. The Winchester Democrat Wednesday March 16, 1892 A queerly erratic family were the Bufords, one of whom, Judge Marshall Buford, drowned himself at Lexington last week. Ellis, Joe	The Pendleton Trial. The examining trial of Judge F. P. Pendleton for the killing of Joe Ellis was begun

	before Judge Evans Tuesday afternoon and the crowded Courthouse attests the interest taken in the trial by our citizens. The prosecution was ably conducted by County Attorney Sam Jeffries and Charlie Bronston, of Lexington. J. M. Benton and Jas. F. Winn represented Judge Pendleton. A marked feature of the examination was the absence of bickering among the attorneys. Very few questions met with objections and the fullest investigation was thus insured. The witnesses were kept from the room but most of them agreed of the main points and differed only on minor points. The testimony showed a state of facts about as given in our last issue, and the inference then drawn were shown to be valid and well supported. After exhaustive arguments by counsel, the case was submitted and in a few words Judge Evans declared it clearly a case of self defense and discharged Mr. Pendleton. The decision of Judge Evans was no surprise to those who heard the evidence, and met with general approval. Judge Pendleton was congratulated by many friends. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, April 19, 1901 Exonerated By The Grand Jury. We made a thorough investigation into the unfortunate affair which resulted in the death of Mr. Ellis and our investigation disclosed that an exhaustive examination was held before Judge James H. Ellison, Lee		Disobedience Of Orders Causes a Terrible Wreck on the L. & N. Road Near Upton, Ky.,--Three Men Are Dead Elizabethtown, Ky., Jan. 26.—A disastrous head-end collision between two freight trains on the Louisville & Nashville railroad about a quarter of a mile north of Upton, which is 15 miles south of this point, at 1:45 o'clock. Tuesday morning. Three men were killed instantly and four were badly injured. The killed are: Wm. Miller, engineer of No. 16, of Louisville; Lee Ellison, brakeman on No. 16, of Louisville; unknown tramp, about 22 years of age. The injured are: Smith King, brakeman, Louisville, arm broken and skull thought to be fractured; Clarence Ryan, brakeman, Louisville, scalp wounds and badly bruised; J. M. Burnett, engineer No. 71, flesh wounds; Frank Bell, Western Union line repaired, hip broken. The bodies of Engineer Miller and Brakeman Ellison have not been recovered and are still under debris of the two engines, which are piled high upon each other. The wreck was caused by Engineer Miller's disobedience in not obeying orders. He had instructions to wait at Upton for the arrival of the southbound train, No. 71, but did not do so. A quarter of a mile beyond the station, on a curve, the collision occurred. A wrecking train with several physicians was sent out from Louisville immediately and began work. Elmore, Mrs. Martha	W. D. Rash and wife, of Lexington are here to attend the funeral of the latter's grandmother, Mrs. Martha Elmore. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, May, 11, 1894 Death of Mrs. Martha Elmore Life should close as does the summer day, when it has lived in accordance with the laws of nature and nature's God. Such was the close of the life of Martha Elmore, who died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John H. Ogden, Wednesday morning. For a long time she has been feeble, and the life forces gradually grew weaker and a short time before her death she became paralyzed and life's fires gradually went out. She was one

	of the sweetest, gentlest old ladies we have ever known, a perfect type of Christian lady. She was born in North Carolina in 1814 and consequently was eighty years of age. She was a daughter of James Orr, whose father was a soldier during the Revolutionary war. Her cousin Swift Orr, was Minister to Japan under President Harrison's administration. In 1831 she was married in Pike county, Missouri, to Freeman Elmore, who died in 1853, leaving his wife with six small children. Mrs. J. H. Ogden, the oldest being less than thirteen years of age. For more than forty years she lived a widow and had the satisfaction of seeing all her children grow up to be numbered with the best people of the community in which they lived. The two daughters, Mrs. John H. Ogden and Mrs. Sam H. Ogden, reside in this city. The eldest, Jas. L. Elmore, is assistant cashier of a bank in Nortonville, Kansas. Robert O. Elmore is a minister of the Cumberland Presbyterian church at Bowling Green, Mo. Thos. J. Elmore is in the mercantile business in Curryville, Mo. Freeman Elmore is cashier of a bank at Winchester, Kansas. For sixty-five years Mrs. Elmore was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and her sons are all officers in that church. For the past sixteen years she has lived in Kentucky, thirteen of them with her daughter where she died. The funeral will be preached this morning from the family residence by Revs. L. D. Beck and W. T. Bolling, and the burial will be in the cemetery here. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, May, 11, 1894

Embry, Joe O.	Pistol Shot Ends the Life of a Prominent Montgomery Farmer Joe O. Embry Killed by His Tenant Dispute Over a Tobacco Crop The Cause Joe O. Embry, a prominent farmer of Montgomery county, was shot and instantly killed Friday by L. A. Stull. Stull had rented some tobacco land from Embry on the shares and had sold his share which displeased Embry. Stull proposed that each should choose a man to divide the crop and when Embry refused he proposed that Embry choose both men. Embry also declined this and after taking legal advise Stull took some men and went to the barn and made preparations to divide the crop. Embry came along and finding out the state of affairs became very angry and drawing his pistol, began firing at Stull who returned fire, one bullet penetrating Embry's breast killing him instantly. Embry was well known here and when sober had many friends but when drinking was very dangerous. He had been in many fights. While going to school in Frankfort he cut Thos. Eginton, of this city, a schoolmate, from the effects of which Mr. Eginton suffered until his death. A few years ago at the depot in this city he cut J. E. Gaitskill very severely; for this Embry was in jail for a long time. Some sixteen or seventeen years ago Embry was shot five or six times by the Paris Chief of Police and he had been engaged in numerous smaller brawls. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, November 30, 1897 L. O. Stull, who killed J. O. Embry, was cleared on his examining trial Wednesday at Mt. Sterling. Embry, Will	AA	JAS Martin, white, and Will Embry, colored, had a difficulty at Paint Lick, Madison County. Embry belong the aggressor. The later came to Richmond to leave on the train but was met at the door by Martin with a shot gun who fired killing him instantly. The Democrat, Wednesday, July 2, 1890. Madison; Jas. Martin was indicted for the murder of a negro The Winchester Democrat; Wednesday, October 1, 1890 In Richmond Circuit Court last week Jas. Martin was tried for killing a negro named Embry. Judge Morton instructed the jury to find the defendant guilty, leaving it optional only with the jury to say whether the offense was murder or manslaughter, but instead the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal. Judge Morton then ordered their arrest for contempt of Court in disregarding his instructions. The jury say that they were sworn to try the case according to the law and the evidence, notwithstanding the instruction to find guilty, they had a right to disagree as to whether the offense was murder or manslaughter, and consequently a right to acquit, and believing from the evidence that the accused was not guilty, so decided. The case is the first of the kind known in the county and has attracted much attention. The Winchester Democrat; Wednesday, October 8, 1890

Emerson, Benjamin F.	Prominent citizen dead Mr. B.F. Emerson, of Ford dies Sunday after long illness Benjamin F. Emerson, one of the prominent citizens of the county died Sunday at the home of Mrs. Mary Reed. He had been suffering from a complication of diseases and some weeks ago went to Tate Springs. He failed to obtain relief and a few days ago he returned and death ended his sufferings. He was a native of the county, a son of the late Francis Emerson. He had decided views on all subjects but was a kind and generous man who had many friends. The funeral was preached yesterday at the Masonic Hall near Elkin, and the remains were buried at his old home now belonging to D. H. Morgerson. From his early manhood he had been a devoted Mason and his burial was under the auspices of that order. His wife, who was formerly Miss Bush, survives him. Emerson, Rufus	Some marked peculiarities appear in connection with the drowning of persons in the Kentucky river from Boonesborough up to the Mouth of Red river. The drowning at Ford last week brings forth these remarks. From the settlement of this locality, 1775 to about 1885, a period of eighty years, it is believed nobody was drowned. About the latter year Capt. Turnbull, of Winchester was drowned at the mouth of Bear Run. Probably three years later, Pen Coe, another Clark county man was drowned just below

	the mouth of Four Mile. In 1882, a dozen negro men and a white woman were washed out of a railroad camp on Two Mile creek into the river and drowned near Ford during a sudden rise. A few years later, several boys from Clark were drowned at the Mouth of Upper Howard's creek. Since that time the number of drownings especially at Ford, have been too great to be recalled, but perhaps every instance except that of John Sewell, several years ago and the boy East a year ago and a colored boy the past Spring that were from Clark. Thus it spans that for nearly a century and a quarter only four or five Madison county people have been drowned along about fifteen miles of river and those within the brief period of less than six years, while Clark has been unfortunate for nearly forty years and the extent of dozens. But our Madison people on the North side never had any great love for water except for farming purposes.—Richmond Register. This is only a partial list of those drowned near Ford is even the last generation: Rufus Emerson was drowned at Boonesboro; a man named Tillet near the Mouth of Otter Creek; John Atkinson some where near the same place; two sons of Commodore Richardson at the mouth of Two Mile, and a negro boy in the big eddy above the Mouth of Four Mile. Zach Hukill drowned himself on account of ill health near Riverside; Bennie Butler was drowned in Two Mile creek and his body was afterward found in the river. Quite a number of other drownings have occurred, the names of the victims having escaped our memory. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, July 2, 1897

Emerson, William	TO HANG The Death Penalty Given to Dillard Rainey. The Murder of Aaron Adams to Be Avenged. The Majesty of the Law Vindicated. Not in a spirit of vengeance; not with an outburst of wrath nor with the savage senselessness of mob violence; but with the calm, dignified majesty of the law has the blood of Aaron Adams, which cries from the ground, been avenged, or will be when the sentence of the law is executed. A thrill of horror went through our people when the causeless, cruel murder was committed, and when the news spread Saturday that the death penalty had been awarded the murderer, there was a verdict of assent almost universal, and the only regret was that Matt Rainey, the prisoner's father, did not receive the same sentence. The crime was a most atrocious one, and with no mitigating circumstances. Matt Rainey and James Henry had differences concerning a piece of land near the mouth of Upper Howard's Creek, and Henry had placed Frank Haggard in possession as a tenant. Rainey hauled the fence from around Haggard's garden leaving it open to the stock. Haggard hauled the rails back again and a quarrel on the 13th of last May in which Rainey shot Haggard inflicting a wound that it was thought would prove fatal. Mrs. Haggard saw Aaron Adams passing along the road and asked him to go for a doctor. Adams went after Dr. T. S. Allen, who lived near, and returning with the physician half an hour later, he was met by Matt Rainey and Dillard Rainey, father and son. Matt was

		armed with a gun and Dillard with a pistol. The former raised his gun to shoot Adams, but was prevented by Dr. Allan. With an oath he told his son to shoot and the latter did so. As Adams sank down pierced with a number of balls, Matt Rainey savagely tried again to shoot him. Deputy Sheriff Eperson was in the neighborhood and arrested Matt Rainey at once. Dillard escaped, although the officers once got close enough to shoot at him. He went through the mountains and was finally arrested at Roanoke, Va., under an assumed name. Matt Rainey was tried last fall and got a life sentence. He took an appeal and since has been in jail here. Two or three feeble attempts were made to mob him here last Spring but they lacked leadership. Since he has been in jail he has incurred the ill-will of the officers and fellow prisoners all whom concur in saying he is the meanest man with whom they have ever had dealings. The trial of Dillard Rainey began last Tuesday. The evidence closed Thursday at noon and was argued until the next morning when it was given to the jury, which brought in a verdict of guilty and fixing the death penalty the next day. When the prisoner heard it he turned deathly pale and seemed almost overcome. He soon recovered and was taken back to jail cursing the jury and vowing that he would never be hung. Neither of the prisoners have ever shown any remorse for the poor widow and the six helpless children. This will make the second sentence pronounced by Judge Scott, the other being the negro Will Taylor, who was hung for the murder of Squire Doty, in Madison county a year or two ago. If Rainey is hung it will make the fourth legal hanging in the county, and the first white man to be hung. Many years ago Jesse Winn, a negro, was hung near where Col. R. N. Winn's residence now stands, for the murder of Wm. Emerson, a white man, who owned him or had him hired. In August, 1839, a young negro named Knight was hung on the Lexington pike near F. H. Dudley's. He belonged to Mr. Morris who lived on Stoner and had committed a rape on a little white girl. In April, 1841, a negro man, belonging to Daniel Spar, broke into a house and disemboweled his wife. The latter got well, but the negro was hung for housebreaking. The negro woman belonged to Geo. Anderson and her assailant was hung near the far end of the C. and O. trestle on the side of Poynterville. In November, 1850, Thomas Nichols killed his master, Fred B. Nichols, at a rock quarry on the Lexington pike. He was hung about Christmas of the same year. The late Wm. Simpson was Sheriff at the time, and not liking the job of hanging the negro, he employed Marsh Lawrence to tie the rope. A year or two later Marsh Lawrence was killed by his brother, Jack Lawrence. The latter fled to Missouri, but was caught, brought back and sentenced to be hung. He was the first white man in the county to receive the death sentence, but was finally pardoned by Gov. Powell. About seventeen years ago, Ben. Plunkett was lynched, being hung to a tree in the Courthouse yard, the charge being an attempt assault on Miss Annie Ball, now Mrs. Bradford. In the fall of 1895 Bob Haggard was hung from the bridge on the Muddy Creek pike for a similar assault on Miss Elkin of near Ford. No motion has yet been made for a new trial, but this will be done. Since the death penalty has been given to Dillard, his father says he does not wish a new trial, but is inclined to accept the life sentence given him last fall. The general opinion is that if he should secure a new trial he would also be hung. The Winchester Democrat. Tuesday, February 16, 1897. Death Sentence In 1819 a negro was hung for killing his master. The master's name was Emerson. The Sun-Sentinel Thur., May 12, 1904

Emmerson, Dianna	In many of the old-time grave yards in the county may be found strange and peculiar inscriptions. Mr. R.H.C. Bush handed us the following which was copied from an old-fashioned tomb on John W. Hart's farm near the old Bush Mill on Howard's Lower Creek: In memory of Dianna Emmerson, Born Feb.7, 1791; Married to Jonathan Bush June 2, 1814. Departed this life March 5, 1849, Pr. Shannon preached her funeral Nov. 18, 1849. "On the relative value of good qualities of this female. This favored child of nature who combines in herself these united perfection's may be justly considered as the masterpiece of the creation; as the most perfect image of the divinity here below. Man, the proud Lord of the creation bows his haughty neck beneath her gentle rule. "Exalted creation itself shall respect the all powerful magic of her beauty; her charms may fade, but they shall never wither, and memory still in the waning of life hanging with fond affection over the blanched rose shall view through the veil of lapsed years, the tender bud, the dawning promises, whose beauties once blushed before the beams of morning sun." Engleman, Andrew Simon Jackson	Andrew Engleman, the little orphan boy in whom much interest has been taken by our people, died on last Thursday night of brain fever. His funeral was preached at the Presbyterian church at 2 o'clock Friday evening by Rev. G. C. Kelley. The Semi-Weekly Sun Tue., 3-30-1880 A Sad Case Andrew Engleman, the little white boy who has lived with Alfred Donahi, of color, ever since he has been in Clark, and whose case aroused the sympathies of our people to such an extent, died last Friday morning of brain fever, aged 11 years. His funeral was preached by Rev. G. C. Kelly at the Presbyterian church, and quite a number, both white and black, were present. Thinking that a true history of his case would interest our readers, we obtained from Donahi the following statement; Donahi formerly lived in Boyle, about 7 miles from Danville, and was once owned by Hon. Paul J. Doneghy, the present representative from that county. After emancipation he lived in a little house of his own, and on going to the door on the morning of March 6th, 1869, he found a basket containing a white boy infant about three weeks old. In the basket he also found articles of clothing for the child and a note commending it to his care, and stating that its grandfather, Chris Engleman, a wealthy farmer of Lincoln, would pay him $100 per year for his maintenance. He accordingly took the child, and from that time until his death provided for him with commendable care and the greatest kindness he was able to afford. Donahi says that he afterwards went to see old man Engleman, who again agreed to fulfill the promise made in the note, but afterwards declined to do so, and never gave him a cent as long as he lived. He died last year and is said to have left a good estate. Donahi says the child's father was Ephraim Engleman, a son of Chris. Engleman, who committed suicide before the child was born because his father refused to allow him to marry the child's mother, who was his own cousin, a Miss Mary Thurman, who married a man named Bercaw before Andrew's birth. Bercaw died and she then married a man named Highlage and moved to Illinois. Donahi has several letters in his possession from the relatives of the child, whose full name was Andrew Simon Jackson Engleman. He was quite a sprightly lad and had been going to school for some time, having been enabled to do so by the liberality of Mr. Barry Taylor, of Newport, who spent several months in Winchester and became interested in the little fellow. The ladies of the Presbyterian church were also especially kind to him. The Clark County Democrat Wed., 3-31-1880 On our outside appears an article from The Winchester Democrat giving an account of the death of Andrew Engleman, said to be an illegitimate son of Eph Engleman, dec'd. From the friends of the family we learn that there are several inaccuracies in this statement. In the first place Eph Engleman did not commit suicide, but died so his doctors say of a well-defined case of Cerebra-Spinal-Meningitis. Miss Thurman, who was Mrs. Bercaw at the time, did not claim that it was Mr. Engleman's child till after his death, and although Mr. Chris Engleman, his father, never believed that it was Eph's child yet he proposed to her that he would provide for her and the child if she would leave her husband, who wanted Mr. Engleman to pay him a large sum for his support of the child which was born shortly after the marriage. It is also claimed that Mr. Engleman paid the old colored man several hundred dollars during his lifetime. Mrs. Bercaw, now a widow, and living in the West, is said to have been an exceedingly handsome woman, and to have received great attention from scores of men before the birth of the child. Engleman, Bessie	Same Railroad Crossing Girl Killed Where Her Cousin Was Hurt-Her Uncle's Fatal Fall Danville, Ky., May 21 Miss Bessie Engleman, of Stanford, Ky., was run over and killed while crossing the L. & N. railroad near the home of her uncle E. P. Wood, in Lincoln county. Her cousin, Miss Sue Woods, was struck at the same place a few years ago and so badly hurt that her condition was considered critical for several months. About the same time Miss Engleman was killed her uncle, R. G. Givens, of Lancaster, Ky., was probably fatally crushed by the breaking of a rope attached to a lift, on which he was being lowered into a mine. The Winchester Democrat Fri., May 25, 1906
Engleman, Sam	At Standford Saturday, Mack Ferrill was convicted of the murder of Sam Engleman and was sentenced to imprisonment for life. The killing took place on May Court day last. The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, June 21, 1893

The Winchester Democrat Friday, January 21, 1910 Leaves queer will Mrs. Arthusa Epperson, who recently died at her home in Fayette county, leaving a large estate, had stern notions about the duty of boys sticking to the farm and of young people not marrying too soon. In the last codicil of her will, which was filed for probate, is the following clause: "If any of my children marry or quit working on the farm or on my said real estate before five years shall have expired after my death, he or she shall forfeit all interest in my estate when final disposition is made, except the amount of $1. "After my present farm is wholly paid for the boys who remain on it and work shall receive pro rata one-half of the profits made on said farm after all necessary running expenses have been paid, and the other half is to be applied to my estate to accrue and multiply for my children for final division as previously mentioned." Estes, J. W.	DIED-At his home in this county, Wednesday morning after a long illness, Mr. J. W. Estes, aged seventy-two years. The funeral was preached by Rev. Wm. Rupard at the residence and the remains were interred in the cemetery at this place. He leaves three sons, J. T. Jr., Will and Fred, of this county, and two daughters, Mrs. Harlan Kennedy, of this county, and Mrs. G. W. Dawson, of Austerlitz. His wife formerly Miss Mary Stipp, died in 1875. A sister, Mrs. Nancy Ballenger is the only member of his father's family now living. In early life he joined the old Baptist church at Friendship a church that formerly existed near this city, and during his long and useful life, he was ever mindful of his obligations as a man and christian. He had many friends and will be much missed in his community. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, January 18, 1895.

Estill, _____ (Capt.)		A monument is being put up in the white cemetery at Richmond, Ky., to the memory of Munk, the colored Indian fighter, who was a hero in the battle with the Wyandottes in 1782, where Mt. Sterling now stands, and who carried Captain James Berry, who was badly wounded, forty miles on his back to the Fort, in Madison. Captain Estill and all his men, but six were killed, and all the Indians but one. Pres. Harris, another colored man, recently died in Richmond. He was a drummer in the old Militia days, and beat the drum for volunteers in the Mexican war when Gen. C. M. Clay was the first to enlist. He also beat the drum at the laying of the corner stone of the Clay monument at Lexington and various other places. He was Drum Major of the 145th Kentucky Infantry, colored and, in a contest with a hundred regiments in the Army of the Potomac was awarded the prize for the best drilled Drum Major. General Grant awarded the prize in person, a fine baton.—National Chronicle The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, April 15, 1891

Estis, William	Death of Mrs. Collingsworth. Mrs. Frazer Collingsworth died may 22nd, at the home of Woodson Owen at Missouri, of cancer, aged eighty-four years. She was originally Miss Frances Rainey, a native of this county. In early life she married Minor Griggs. They lived together until past middle age, and by industry and economy, accumulated a competence. The husband finally sickened and died and Mrs. Griggs, after the conventional time of mourning had elapsed, married William Estis. The angel of death passed that way again, and again Mrs. Estis was a widow. Fully believing that it is not good for either man or woman to be alone, she again stood before nuptial altar, this time with Jas. Ecton. Before many years had elapsed, she followed his remains to their last resting place, but nothing daunted, she again laid aside her widow's weeds, this time at the solicitation of Rev. Smith V. Potts. Death is not respecter of persons, and it was not very long before he, too, was gathered to his fathers, leaving a disconsolate widow. Still convinced that marriage is not a failure, and longing for the strong arm of a younger husband to support her declining Frazer Collingsworth, a young man who worked for her. For various reasons this marriage was not a happy one, and the groom left after squandering much of his wife's possessions. She shortly afterward obtained a divorce from him and some time ago went to Missouri. It was reported here that she had married again a few months ago, but it is said to b untrue. Etly, Mrs. Virginia	Etly indicted For wife murderer, though his accusing daughter wavered Louisville, Ky., - The Jefferson county grand jury charged John Etly with the murder of his wife, Mrs. Virginia Etly. The indictment was returned on the testimony of the prisoner's daughter, Annie Belle Etly, who slept in the room with her mother, and who declares that her father killed the woman. At one time before the grand jury the girl weakened, and said it was a man like her father in appearance who killed her mother. She said afterward that she did this to shield her father and reiterated that he was the murderer. The coroner's jury, having refused to bring in a verdict, Coroner Kelly dismissed it. He returned a verdict of his own finding that "Mrs. Etly came to her death from stabs in the head and throat, inflicted by some person unknown to the coroner." The coroner's jury refused to return a verdict because the state and county authorities would not produce Annie Etly to testify. The authorities help that to bring the witness before the coroner might expose the hand of the commonwealth. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, November 27, 1906 Mistreatment Of the daughter who accuses him is charged against Etly Louisville, Ky., - the coroner's jury began an investigation of the murder of Mrs. John Etly by her husband, as alleged by their child. Judge James P.R. Tarvin, of Covington, who appeared as counsel for the prisoner, demanded that the child, Anna Etly, be brought into the court. She is now sequestered by the city authorities. Detective Martin Donahue testified the prosecution expected to prove that Etly was guilty of improper intimacy with his daughter. A dispatch from Cloverport places Etly in a bad light. It is said that when living in that town a few years ago Etly mistreated a girl and was compelled to leave. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, November 27, 1906 Mysterious woman captured Skulking about the home where Mrs. Etly was murdered Louisville, Ky., - A well dressed woman, giving her name as Mrs. Margaret Melvin, and evidently of a refined family, was arrested when skulking about the home where Mrs. Virginia Etly was murdered. Officers who made the arrest were attracted by her voice, and found her crawling along the ground. She said she was "the great female detective sent out from San Francisco to ferret out the mystery of the Etly murder." She also had solved the Pearl Bryan case. Seeking to escape, the woman ran into a ditch, but was pulled out by Patrolman Fow and Reiss, who took her to central police station. In police court she was put under $20 bond that she may be held. Eubank, John J.	The death of Capt. J. L. Wheeler brings to mind the fact that death is fast decimating the ranks of the Muckletonian Club, at one time the most prominent hunting and fishing club of the South. It was organized in 1872 with eighteen of the most prominent men of Winchester and vicinity as members. In addition to scores of minor trips they occasionally went on more extensive ones to Florida, Arkansas, the Pacific Slope, etc. These trips were truly days of true pleasure and good fellowship. Not a word of discord ever marred the harmony of their meetings. Col. R. N. Winn was the first President and still fills that position, although the remaining members are so few and scattered that the meetings of late years have been few. The first member die was John J. Eubank, followed in succession by Ben P. Goff, S. Grant Jackson, M. G. Taylor, Jas. D. Gay, David A. Gay, D. T. Buckner, John W. Prewitt, John A. Judy and J. L. Wheeler. The surviving members are r. N. Winn, Leeland Hathaway, J. D. Simpson, A. H. Sympson, and T. F. Phillips, of this city; Geo. R. Snyder and R. J. Snyder, of Louisville and Sam McKee, of Philadelphia. Ten have passed over the dark river while eight await the summons to join their comrades on the other side. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, May 4, 1894

Eubank, Miriam Weaver	An Old Case Settled. In the Court of Appeals Wednesday the case of Calmes vs. Eubank from this county was affirmed. This was a suit to determine what was meant by the will of a man who died in 1828. Seventy years ago there lived a man in Woodford county Marquis Calmes, who came originally from North Carolina. At his death in 1828 his will was probated. It was written by himself and provided that certain lands in Clark county should be given to his daughter, Miriam, who had married a man named Eastin. At her death it was to go to her children, with revision to Spencer Calmes, the son of the testator, who was charged with the duty to see that this property was settled upon by Miriam Eastin and children as the testator declared his intention should be done. To Miriam Eastin four children were born, Columbus, Mark, and Thomas Eastin and Pricilla, who afterward married a Weaver. To the latter a daughter named Miriam, after her grandmother. She married W. Z. Eubank and died a number of years ago leaving three sons. During all this time nothing had been done looking into the interpretation of the seemingly contradictory clauses of the old Calmes will and about eight years ago Mr. Eubank's brought suit in behalf of his children to have the will construed and quite the title to his children's property. The Circuit Court decided in their favor, none of the opposing heirs being before the court. Spencer Calmes, the son of Marquis Calmes, who was mentioned in his will went to Missouri and died there almost half a century ago, and his heirs are scattered all over the country from Maine to California. In cases similar to this suit brought by Mr. Eubank, five years are allowed for persons with opposing interests may take action. Nothing was heard of these descendants of Spencer Calmes until this time had nearly expired. As Thomas Eastin, the last child of Miriam Calmes Eastin, had died in the meantime they brought suit for the property claiming that under the will it should revert to the heirs of Spencer Calmes. Marquis Calmes was evidently not a scholar and had used words in his will with the full meaning of which he evidently was not familiar, and the work of the court was to say that he did mean. This the higher court has decided as meaning that the descendants of Miriam Calmes should have a fee simple title to the property. This property is very valuable. It embraces the Oil Springs property, the Lum Eastin Mill property, the farm of Minor Hisle and other property. The Oil Springs could be made one of the nicest resorts in this part of the State and now that this cloud has been removed from the titles, we should be glad to see some syndicate obtain control of it and make it a place of fashionable resort. Grant Eubanks. The Armstrong (Mo.) Herald pays the following tribute to a former Clark county man: "S.G. Eubanks, a well known citizen of this place, died of pneumonia Sunday morning. He was taken sick just two weeks prior to his death. He was first taken with the grip, which later developed into pneumonia, and death resulted as stated above. The deceased was born in Clark county, Kentucky, March 2, 1862, and was 44 years, one month and six days old at the time of his death. The deceased came from Kentucky and located in Howard county in 1887. He was married to Miss Elizabeth Lee, daughter of the late Judge Lee, Oct. 9th 1889. To their union five children were born, all boys. We have known Grant Eubanks for the past 17 years, and a better hearted, or more self-sacrificing man we never knew. He would take pleasure in doing a friend a favor, and helping those that it was in his power to help. He was big hearted, and had a warm place in his heart for everybody. For many years he has been a faithful and devout member of the Christian church, and he was a true Christian gentleman. He was devoted to his family and was truly a good man, and a good citizen. Evans, Charles	Deputy Marshal Evans Shot and Killed at Mt. Sterling. ANOTHER tragedy occurred at Mt. Sterling Saturday night. A negro named Johnson and a noted tough was raising a row in a saloon when Policemen Charles Evans and Horace Lane went in to arrest him. He fired first at Lane, the ball striking his silver badge just over the heart and glancing off without injury. Johnson then shot Evans in the groin, inflicting a wound from which he died the next day. The negro was shot in the face and also in the breast and is badly hurt. When Evans died a mob was talked of but the officers prevailed and Judge Cooper will hold a special term June 28 th to try Johnson, who will be hung if he don't die of his wounds. Evans, the dead policeman, was married last Wednesday to Mrs. Ida Langston, whose first husband was killed several years ago by Sam Everett. A brother of the murdered man lives in this city on Mt. Abbott. Johnson had only been out of the pen a few weeks where he had been serving a sentence for shooting a negro woman a few years ago.

		Henry Watson, the manager of our Telephone Exchange, was fired upon a few nights ago by some unknown party and it is now believed that Johnson was the man, as Watson, while on the police force, shot and killed Johnson's father. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, June 18, 1895. A Change Needed. For quite a while we kept a head line standing "Another Killing at Mt. Sterling," and very frequently was it called into use. From present indications it will have to be changed to "Other Killings at Mt. Sterling," as homicides, shootings and cuttings come in squads and battalions. In addition to the killing of one policeman and the narrow escape of another by a negro, who was also shot, an account of which we gave in our last, there were several others about the first of the week. About the same hour Saturday night that Policeman Evans was killed, Henry Whitaker met Newt. Anderson, an eighteen-year-old boy, on the road, in the eastern part of the county, and after a few words shot and killed him. Whitaker walked to Mt. Sterling and gave himself up. There were no witnesses to the murder, but Whittaker says he had heard that Anderson had threatened to kill him. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, June 21, 1895. Two of the jury which sentenced the negro murderer Johnson to be hung at Mt. Sterling are ex-Clarkites, Green Butler and Will Treadway. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, June 21, 1895. Johnson Will Hang. JOHN JOHNSON, the negro who killed policeman Evans at Mt. Sterling a few weeks ago was tried at a special term of Circuit Court called by Judge Cooper, and after being out eleven minutes the jury found him guilty, and he is sentenced to be hung August 18th. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, July 5, 1895. John Johnson, the condemned murderer of Policeman Evans has no hopes of Executive clemency and expects to die on the scaffold Friday, August 16. He claims to have made peace with God. – Sentinel Democrat. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday July 30, 1895 Perhaps the largest crowd ever in Mt. Sterling was there Friday to see the Negro murderer, John Johnson hung. The train from Lexington and this place was crowded and the number of people there was variously estimated from six to ten thousand. Johnson displayed perfect indifference at all times and even when on the gallows showed no fear. His neck was not broken and he died of strangulation. His crime was the killing of Policeman Charles Evans a couple of months ago while Evans was trying to arrest him. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday August 20, 1895 The children of Policeman Evans who was murdered last summer by John Johnson, have filed suit against the Washington Life Insurance Company for $1,500, the amount of the policy held by Mr. Evans which the company for some reason refuses to pay. Evans, Clarence		A Big Shortage Alleged Williamstown, Ky., Dec. 8 The greatest sensation of many days was created when it leaked out that the People's Bank of Dry Ridge had suffered a shortage in overdraft aggregating something near $25,000. Some days since Cashier Clarence Evans died of fever, and an expert was employed to inspect the books with the above result. Mr. Evans was a man of exemplary habits and reputation. The misfortune was due to his inexperience and credulity. Absolem Carter, overdrawn about $15,000, is insolvent, Evan's bondsmen will make good the loss. Evans, Mrs. John	AA	Cutting at Ford. Marshall A. J. Vice, of Ford, brought John Evans, a colored barber of that town, here yesterday and lodged him in jail, for cutting his wife's throat the night previous. Evans had been on a spree for a day or two and becoming incensed at his wife for some cause, he proceeded to cut off her head, and nearly succeeded. The instrument was that favorite of the negro, the razor. He struck her in the front part of the throat barely missing the artery, and cut to the bone in the back of the neck completely severing the muscles, and probably cause her death. Evans and his wife have been getting along badly for some time, and have been before the police court more than once for fighting. She has been inordinately jealous of him and this was what caused much of the trouble. The Winchester Democrat, Friday June 22, 1894 John Evans, the negro barber who nearly decapitated his wife at Ford was brought out for trial yesterday; as his wife was not able to appear, his trial was fixed for a week from tomorrow, and in default of $250 bail he was remanded to jail. Evans, Pete		W. A. Williams of near this place, has in his possession a bloody relic. It is the gun with which Dr. Keene killed Pete Evans, and was in turn killed himself by Dr. Austene; it will be remembered that at the time Austene killed Keene, Baker Batterton opened fire on Dr. Austene with a revolver in each hand, firing a dozen shots or more but without injury. Two of the balls however, struck the stock of his gun, the marks which are still plainly visible. Batterton fled and has never yet returned. One barrel of the murderous instrument, which is a muzzle loader, is made for shot and the other for the balls.-Centralia (Mo) Guard. Evans, Robley D.		He Comes of Good Stock. One of the principal naval heroes of the late war was "Fighting" Bob Evans. The following from the Danville Advocate shows that he came of good Clark county stock, which accounts for his good qualities. Judge James H. Evans, and others, are descended from the same stock. The Advocate says: "Boyle county folks can claim kinship with Capt. Robley D. Evans, "Fighting Bob," of the Brooklyn Capt. Evans comes of the family of Capt. Peter Evans, of Prince William county, Va., who served six years in the War of the Revolution with great credit; came to Kentucky and is buried in Clark county. Capt. Peter Evans was the grandfather of the grandmother of Judge Charles E. Kincaid. She was Mrs. James C. Banford, born Fanny L. Evans, of Fayette, Ky. Consequently, Capt. Peter Evans was the great-great-grandfather of Judge C. B. and Dr. Howard Kincaid and their sisters. Dr. Silas Evans, of Lexington and Dr. Geo. B. Evans, of Richmond, are of the same family. Eversole - French Feud 1886 - 1893	“Tallow Dick” arrested Last week Sheriff Hodgkin received an order to arrest “Tallow Dick” Combs, a colored barber, of this city, on account of a fine of long standing imposed on him for selling whiskey without a license, which fine was imposed by the Perry Circuit court. He was arrested and taken there by Deputy Sheriff James H. Stokely, Friday. The fine was fifty dollars and costs, which with the cost of taking him back will amount to nearly one hundred dollars. Dick says he will not pay it but will lay the time out in jail. Dick has seen the inside of a jail before, as he was one of the leaders of the Eversoles in the famous French-Eversole war. Since he came here he has been a quiet citizen. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, March 24, 1896 The Courier-Journal’s Hazard special gives the following account of the fight of the Eversole-French factions on the 4th inst. First, at 4 o’clock in the afternoon a lively fight took place between four men of the French party and as many Eversoles, near the Court House. The court which was in session, stampede. The fight lasted about fifteen minutes. Ed. Campbell, of the Eversole party, was killed. The parties rested on their arms till dark, when the fight was renewed with increased fierceness. The French party had been reinforced by the Davidson boys, Jesse Morgan, brother of E. C. Morgan, killed by Eversoles and others. B. F. French himself came into town about 12 o’clock with reinforcements, to the relief of his beleaguered friends. At daybreak of the 5th the fight raged with new fury, the Eversole party, stationed in the Court House and in J. C. Eversole’s old fort. The French party occupied what positions they could find. Jesse Fields and Tom Smith, occupied the top of a hill back of the Eversoles, and held a position commanding the enemy’s works, and kept up a steady fire on the Eversoles. The battle lasted about an hour, when the Eversole party beat a hasty retreat, fording the river on foot and disappearing in the mountains on the other side, leaving their dead. Ed. Campbell and John McKnight were killed and several wounded. Jesse Fields, of the French side received a flesh wound in the arm. Court broke up without ceremony, the Judge leaving for home as quickly as possible. The Winchester Democrat Wed., 11-20-1889 Capt. Gaither, who has been at Hazard, Perry county, for some time, together with Lieut. Gaines’ company of militia which was sent to meet him, arrived here Sunday night in charge of sixteen prisoners who had been transferred by order of Judge Lilly, of

that court to this county for trial. The most prominent among them are B. F. French and John and George Eversole and Jesse Fields. Geo. Eversole is an ex-County Judge and Fields an ex-Jailer, of Perry county. Most of our readers are familiar with the French-Eversole feud in which it is said 27 men have lost their lives. It began in a business rivalry between Joe Eversole and Fult. French. Eversole was finally killed and French forced to leave the county. While these men have for years been bitter enemies they are now confined in the same room and the leaders are seen in frequent and earnest consultation. Five of the prisoners belong to the French faction and seven to the Eversole crowd, while four are put in for other offenses. There are twenty-five indictments for murder, two for confederating and two for malicious shooting. The Winchester Democrat; Wednesday, September 3, 1890

HABEAS CORPUS

The Perry County Prisoners Brought Before Judge Lisle

The trial of the writ of habeas corpus which was issued by Judge Scott, some weeks ago, was begun before Judge Lisle Thursday and occupied the attention of the court for three days. County Attorney Jouett represented the Commonwealth, and single handed held his own against an array of legal talent that might have appalled an older and more experienced lawyer. But he was equal to the emergency and clearly showed that interests of the Commonwealth and county are safe in his hands. S. N. French, a brother to Fulton French of Harlan, J. J. C. Bace, of Jackson, and Haggard & Benton were counsel for the French's while S. P. Hogg, of Owsley, and a member of the Constitutional convention from clay and Owsley counties, W. P. Bentley, of Leslie, and the representative in the last Legislature from Harlan, Leslie Bell and Perry counties, Harry Eversole, a brother to the prisoners of that name and who was formerly Commonwealth's Attorney from that district. Capt. Ed Gaither, of Harrodsburg, and the commander of the State Guards that captured the whole lot, S. F. Johnson, of Kansas City, Mo., a brother-in-law of George Eversole, and Maj. I. N. Cardwell, of this city were attorneys for the Eversoles. The members of the French faction who applied for bail, were B. F. French, Joe Davidson, John Jones, Jesse Fields and Tom Smith. Of the Eversoles, John C. Eversole, Geo. Eversole, Wesley Whittaker, Green Morris, Frank Polly and Job Bowling were applicants. Of these, several had held important offices in the county; Jesse Fields was Jailer, B. F. French had been County Attorney for two terms and Geo. Eversole was County Judge, John Eversole was a prominent real estate agent and others were prominent in business or politics.

The attention of the court the first day was occupied by the question of jurisdiction. All the prisoners except Job Bowling and John Eversole had made application to the Perry Circuit Court for bail and had been refused. Judge Lisle finally decided that he had no right to review the finding of a superior or higher court, and that he had no jurisdiction as the higher court had refused them bail. Judge Lisle remanded them to jail without bail. J. M. Benton, as attorney for the French faction, then raised the question as to whether the act of the recent legislature, allowing the Circuit Judge to send the prisoners to another and distant county, and under which law Judge Lilly sent the prisoners here was constitutional. Judge Lisle refused to adjudge the law unconstitutional and the application of John Eversole and Job Bowling for bail was heard. All or nearly all of the prisoners on both sides are charged with complicity in the killing of Ed. Campbell and John McKnight during the term of the Circuit Court in November, 1889. Without going into the details of the evidence it seems that a dozen or so on each side were in the town, each side armed and expecting trouble. They passed each other on the streets without any outbreak until Thursday evening when the first firing began. Jesse Fields and Bob Profit, French men were in this court room upstairs, and John Eversole, Bud Gay and others had command of the lower portion. Fields and Profit escaped by jumping out of the second story window. Wesley Whittaker and Henry Davidson, adherents of opposite factions and one or both inflamed with liquor, which Joe Davidson, another of the French prisoners, was selling in defiance of law, had a quarrel about the same time, but separated, and each joined his respective party. The fighting began at once, the French men firing from the Jailer's residence and the Eversoles, from another house. In this fight, Ed. Campbell was killed. He was standing by a tree and was shot by Joe Davidson, a distance of two hundred yards, and killed instantly. Firing was kept up at intervals during the night and about daylight the next morning, John McKnight opened the door of the house where he and several others of the Eversoles spent the night, and was instantly killed. Several of the witnesses say that Thomas Smith another of the prisoners confined here, claimed to have done the killing. The Eversoles seem to have been defeated, but escaped without loss. The prisoners and witnesses seemed to care little for human life and spoke of the killings as a matter of little moment and with no emotion. John Eversole, when testifying concerning the killing of his friend, McKnight, manifested little concern and did not even know the location of the wound. One of the witnesses who helped to wash and dress the body, also testified that he had not looked at the wound.

After the trial of three days, Judge Lisle admitted Job Bowling to bail in the sum of one thousand dollars and John Eversole in the sum of five thousand dollars for their appearance before the Circuit Court in November. Harry Eversole and S. P. Hogg became sureties for their appearance. The idea was freely expressed by the witnesses at the beginning of this trial that if the prisoners were admitted to bail that affairs would soon be worse up there than ever. Indeed more than one of the witnesses told the writer that if such was the case, they the witnesses, would not attempt to go back. The idea that the differences existing between the two factions had been adjusted while in jail, was exploded during the trial. The old hatred is there and the feeling is as bitter as when they lay in wait for each others lives in the woods of Perry county. Either side will do all they can to assist in the prosecution of each other and by that means justice may be meted out.

The Winchester Democrat; Wednesday, September 24, 1890

Judge Lilly was at the Winchester fair looking fat, notwithstanding the severe trial he has undergone in criticism of his course. He says his critics would not be apt to do more than he did in holding Court without protection from the lawless hordes. He thinks the success of the Court held under military protection shows he was correct.—Paris Kentuckian

The Winchester Democrat; Wednesday, September 24, 1890

The following special shows the wisdom of Judge Lilly in sending the Perry county prisoners here where such things do not happen. What is the use of putting the State to useless expense of catching such men and putting them in the mountain jails, where they can get out more rapidly than they are put in? “A bold jail delivery occurred at the Harlan Courthouse on Thursday night last, and four men under indictment for murder made their escape. Their names are Enos Scott, Granville Fee, Jim Howard and Will McGraw. They are the four men who are charged with the murder of Jas. Middleton, on last August election day. They had a trial and were being held over without bail. The escape was effected by removing one of the big stones about the jail window. The county is being scoured for them, but so far no trace has been found of any of them.

The Winchester Democrat; Wednesday, September 24, 1890

Last week, B. F. French, the leader of one of the factions of the Perry county prisoners now confined in jail here, in common with a number of others on both sides, made application for bail before County Judge Lisle. The Judge refused the application of Mr. French and several others on the ground that the Perry Circuit Court had already refused bail and he therefore had no jurisdiction. On Wednesday Judge Benton, as counsel for French, got out another writ of habeas corpus, and Judge Lisle being absent, it was tried before Squire Bloom as the nearest magistrate to the Courthouse. The ground of the application was that the prisoner was suffering from pulmonary and heart diseases, and that longer confinement would permanently injure his health and probably cause death. These facts were substantiated by the testimony of two physicians and Squire Bloom admitted him to bail in the sum of ten thousand dollars, which was readily given, two Perry county men becoming bondsmen. Mr. French has a rented a house on Maple street and will reside here.

The Winchester Democrat; Wednesday, October 1, 1890

B. F. French, the leader of the faction by that name of Perry county prisoners has rented a house on Maple street and has moved his family here.

Circuit Court

Circuit Court convened Monday afternoon with Judge Morton on the bench.

Commonwealth's Attorney Bronston being absent as a member of the Constitutional convention, Hon. Jas. F. Winn was appointed in his stead and filled the position with marked ability. In Judge Morton's charge to the grand jury he called their attention to laws regarding the sale of cigarettes to children under eighteen years of age, against lotteries and against trusts and combinations. These are all now laws passed by the last Legislature.

H. P. Thomson was appointed foreman of the grand jury composed of the following gentlemen: J. T. Ecton, Jas. E. Weathers, D. C. Lisle, J. W. Tuttle, H. P. Thomson, John F. Bush, W. P. Owen, P. D. White, L. M. Green, J. W. Hughes, L. B. Clinkenbeard, C. T. Gamboe, A. S. Hampton, S. H. Bradley, F. M. Gordon and J. M. Rash.

The court at once proceeded to the consideration of the criminal cases transferred here from Perry county, the crimes mostly growing out of the famous French-Eversole feud which raged for several years in that and adjoining counties. This is the first case under the new statute giving the circuit court the power to transfer such cases from counties where state of lawlessness exists to another county, even at a distance. The Constitutionality of this law was raised and will be decided by Judge Morton this morning. The Eversole faction consisting of George and John Eversole, Job Bowling, Green Morris, Frank Polly and Wesley Whitaker, expressed a desire to be tried here, and Judge Morton indicated that he would grant their request. The French side, consisting of Joe Davidson, John Jones, Tom Smith, Wm. Smith, Joe Adkins, Jack Brewer and others, refused to express a preference and will possibly be sent back to Perry county for trial.

The cases on trial now and in which most of the participants on both sides are indicted for the killing of John McKnight and Ed Campbell, who were killed about a year ago. At the November Circuit Court of that county, both the French and Eversoles went to town armed. Several slight Quarrels through the week culminated in a general fight between some of the French's advocates in the jailer's residence and some of the Eversoles without, in which Campbell was killed. It is said Joe Davidson killed him a distance of two hundred yards with a Winchester rifle. The fight was kept up at intervals during the night and the next morning McKnight was killed as he opened the door. Both the dead men were Eversoles, and it is claimed Tom Smith killed McKnight, shooting from a graveyard on top of the hill overlooking the town.

If these cases are tried their progress will be watched with interest.

Circuit Court

--The Perry county cases were then taken up and, as indicated in our last issue, Judge Morton decided that the act by which the cases were transferred here, was constitutional. The Eversoles were ready for trial but the French faction demurred to the indictments. The demurrer was overruled and separate trials were demanded. The Commonwealth decided to take up the case of Joe Davidson, one of the most prominent of the French men. There are three indictments against him. He is charged jointly with a number of each faction, with the killing of Ed Campbell and John McKnight, and is also indicted by himself for the killing of Campbell. A year ago Saturday, a fight occurred between Henry Davidson, Jesse Fields, Thos. Smith, Wm. Smith and others of the French faction who were in the residence of Jesse Fields, the Jailer, and a number of the Eversoles in adjacent houses and on a hill overlooking the house. Ed Campbell, the murdered man, was killed at the latter point as he was in the act of firing into the house containing these men. Davidson does not deny the killing of Campbell, but claims it was done in defense of the men in the Jailer's residence, including his brother. The witnesses for the State testify in the most positive manner that the French party began firing, while those for the defense are equally certain that the initial shots were fired by the Eversoles.

The array of legal talent is quite imposing. The State is represented by Hon. Jas. F. Winn and E. S. Jouett, Jr. the Eversoles by Judge B. F. Buckner, of Louisville, Col. S. F. Johnson, of Kansas city Mo., H. C. Eversole, of London, Hon. W. P. Bentley, of Harlan C. H., and Capt. Hathaway, of this city. The French faction by S. N. French, of Hyden, Geo. Denny, of Lexington, Messrs. Baker and Baily, of Knott county, and Haggard & Benton of this city.

The principals on both sides are wealthy and are sparing no expense. The present session, with only one case under trial, has already cost the State thousands of dollars. Although the prisoners have been confined together since August, their hatred for each other is as bitter and unrelenting as when they hunted each other like wild beasts through the woods of Perry county. Each side is eagerly assisting the State to prosecute each other. The case now on trial will hardly be concluded for a day or two, and possibly not until the last of the week. It is attracting much interest and the Court room is filled at all times.

Circuit Court

The attention of the Circuit Court from the time of the last issue until Friday night was occupied by the trial of Joe Davidson, of Perry county, charged with the murder of Ed Campbell. A strong fight was made by both sides, but as the testimony showed, the murdered man was firing into the jailer's residence where Davidson's brother had taken refuge, the prisoner was acquitted.

TOM SMITH ADMITTED TO BAIL

Some incidents of the late Perry County War—Various Versions of the Trouble. THOMAS Smith, one of the few remaining Perry county warriors in our jail, was brought before Squire Bloom Wednesday morning on an application of or bail. Both mind and body has been slowly giving way since his incarceration and it was in this ground and not on the merits of the case that bail was asked and allowed. He is a member of the French faction and is regarded by many as one of the most desperate on either side. In company with several other on both sides, he is indicted for the killing of Ed Campbell and John McKnight at the famous fight at Hazard last November. The circumstances of Campbell's killing were rendered familiar to many of our readers by the testimony in the trial of Joe Davidson recently. McKnight was killed the next morning about daylight being the door by three men who were secreted in a graveyard overlooking the place. It is claimed that Jesse Fields and Tom Smith were two of the men. He is also indicted for the murder of Joe Eversole and Nick Combs in April 1888. These men were shot from ambush by concealed parties while riding through the woods about five miles from Hazard. Combs was a mere lad and had no connection with the previous troubles., but was killed simply because he was with Eversole on this occasion. The latter was the original leader of the faction by that name. The versions of the two factions in regard to the killing differ widely. The Eversoles claim that Tom Smith was the leader. Eversole was killed instantly but combs was not, but was badly wounded and fell from his horse. Seeing that he was not dead, Smith approached to finish him. Combs was well acquainted with Smith and as the latter approached, begged piteously for his life. With the remark that "dead men tell no tales" Smith drew near the form of the prostrate lad and taking the boy's own pistol from his body, he fired several shots into his body, he fired several shots into his face and head. For some time after the killing Smith did not deny it, but rather gloried in it. He now denies all knowledge of it, and his attorneys say that an alibi can be proved by a number of reputable men. His actions while in jail would show that he committed the deed. Each night his dreams are filled with visions of the murdered boy and the scenes of the killing are enacted over again. At such times the prisoner awakes with screams that can be heard far beyond the prison walls. The French version of the affair is entirely different. They was the killing of Eversole and Combs was the sequel of another killing that occurred the year previous. At that time Wm. Gambrill, a Baptist preacher, and a French partisan, was brutally murdered in Hazard by Joe and John Eversole and John Campbell, the latter two shooting him n the back and the former blowing his brains out while he lay on the ground mortally wounded. The friends of Smith claim that Joe Eversole was killed by friends of Gambrill in retaliation and not by Smith. Of the slayers of Gambrill, as charged above John Eversole alone remains. The death of Joe Eversole has been described. That of John Campbell, the other participant, was equally tragic. About the first of July, 1888 Campbell at the head of a party of Eversoles went to the house of John Morgan, a French sympathizer, for the purpose of killing him, but he was not at home; French and a body of his partisans were expected that night from Breathitt county and Campbell posted Jonah Jones, a negro at the mouth of a lane with orders to fire on them as they passed. French did not come and Campbell and party, not finding their intended victim reported to a neighborhood grocery and got drunk. In this condition they forgot the orders given the sentinel and as they approached, the latter thought it was the expected French troops and fired. The ball struck Campbell in the groin. Inflicting a wound from which he died after forty days intense agony. The versions of the two parties in all these killings differ as widely as the poles and it is hard for an outsider to tell which is true. Probably the truth will never be known. Smith was allowed bail in the sum of two thousand dollars in each of the four indictments, which was promptly given, and he left at once for Perry county. From appearances he will hardly live to be tried.

The Democrat, Wednesday, November 26, 1890.

ARCH PIERSALL has bought the Winchester rifle which Joe Davidson killed Ed Campbell, and concerning which so much was said during the recent trial. There will be no danger of a rebellion among Arch's boarders so long as he has this formidable piece of Perry county artillery on hand.
The Democrat, Wednesday, November 26, 1890.

On Wednesday; Judge J. R. Morton held a special term of the Circuit Court here and among other matters brought before him was the application of Bob Profit for bail. Profit was the only one of the Perry county warriors remaining in jail, and he sighed for the woods and cliffs of Perry county. He was charged with complicity in the killing of John McKnight and Robert Cornett. Most of our readers are familiar with the facts in regard to the killing of McKnight as they were fully brought out at the trial of Joe Davidson last November. Both the French and Eversole factions attended Circuit Court at Hazard in November, 1889, heavily armed and expecting trouble. Both seemed afraid to begin the fight that both expected and members of both factions passed each other on the streets or drank at the same bar, from Sunday until Thursday, when a personal difficulty between Wesley Whittaker, of the Eversole crowd and Henry Davidson of the French faction, precipitated a gentle battle. Early in the fight, Ed Campbell was killed by Joe Davidson. A long trial resulted in Davidson's acquittal on the ground that he had a right to kill Campbell, who was firing into a house in which Davidson's brother had taken refuge. The battle raged at intervals through Thursday night, and at day break the next morning John McKnight was shot in the breast and instantly killed as he opened the door of the house in which the Eversoles had passed the night. Both the dead men belonged to the Eversole faction, and quite a number of both sides, including Profit, were indicted for murder of the latter. Profit was allowed bail in the sum of one thousand dollars on this charge.

The other crime for which he was indicted was the murder of Bob Cornett about a year previous to this battle. Cornett was riding through the woods of Perry county and was shot from ambush and instantly killed. Profit is charged with being the leader of the gang that killed him. It is said that the killing of Cornett was in retaliation for the killing of E. C. Morgan, who was killed, as charged by the Eversoles in 1887. Profit was allowed five thousand dollars bail for the killing of Cornett.

___le is a Virginian and had no cause to be implicated in this feud except general cussedness. He is said by many to be one of the most dangerous men engaged in this war, but one who knows, says that at one time, when a battle was imminent, Profit heard a calf in the bushes, whereupon he threw down his gun and ran like a scared deer. While confined in jail here Judge George Eversole said that Profit tried to cut him with a razor and was only prevented from carrying out his threat by the intervention of some of the other prisoners. He also tried to cut Frank Polly, a fellow-prisoner, at the same time.

There has been some question among lawyers as to the constitutionality of the act by which these cases were transferred from Perry county to this county, some claiming that it is in violation of that part of the constitution which guarantees the prisoner the right to be tried by a jury of the vicinity.

The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, January 7, 1891

As well known to our readers, the trial of Joe Davidson, the Perry county prisoner, for the murder of Ed. Campbell, which occupied nearly the entire term of last Circuit Court was the first one held under the law allowing the Circuit Judge of a county to transfer such case to another, and if need be, a distant county, if in his opinion a state of lawlessness existed which would prevent the officers from discharging their duties or the jury from returning an impartial verdict. In accordance with this law Judge Lily sent all the prisoners indicted in the French Eversole war to this county. Jas. F. Winn, as special prosecutor, wanted these cases sent back to Perry county claiming the law unconstitutional and was in violation of the guarantee given in that instrument where by every man accused of crime should be tried by a jury of the vicinage. Judge Morton overruled that motion and the trial proceeded, resulting in the acquittal of Davidson. The Commonwealth carried the case to the Court of Appeals on the ground mentioned. The higher court this week affirmed Judge Morton's decision and the trial of the remainder of the cases must be held here.

The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, February 4, 1891

The following is the decision of the Court of Appeals upon the constitutionality of the law by which the Perry county cases were tried here:

“The Legislature may by a special law provide for a change of venue in the criminal cases upon the motion of the Commonwealth where an impartial trial cannot be had in the county where the prosecution is pending, as where the officers of the law are deterred by lawless men from summoning impartial jurors, or where the jury would be deterred by lawless men from rendering an impartial verdict. And in such cases the Commonwealth may have a change of venue to the nearest county where an impartial trial can be had. Section 12 of Article 13, of the Constitution of Kentucky, which secures to the accused the right “to a speedy public trial by an impartial jury of the vicinage,” was not intended to prohibit the Legislature from providing by a general law for a change of venue upon the motion of the Commonwealth where it is necessary to an enforcement by the Commonwealth of its laws.”

The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, February 4, 1891

Another one of the Perry county warriors who boarded at the Piersall House, in this city last year, has gone to that bourne where Winchester rifles are unknown and where Sheriffs in their official capacity never molest or make afraid. Frank Polly has shuffled off this mortal coil, and like most of his predecessors, he died with his boots on; his skull being crushed by a maul in the hands of his uncle Ira Davidson. Davidson had left the county some time ago and had gone to Kansas. On his return he found his nephew had married and carried most of the Davidson’s household effects to his own residence. In the quarrel that ensued, Davidson struck him with a maul, inflicting a wound from which he died. Davidson is a very prominent man in Perry county, having been for some time Circuit Clerk of the county. He is a son-in-law of Judge Josaih Combs, and was a brother-in-law of Joe Eversole. The original leader of the faction by that name and who together with Nick Combs, was assassinated in April 1886, by being shot from ambush in the woods of Perry county. Frank Polly was one of the youngest members of the Eversole side and was probably the most reckless and daring partisan on either side. He was possessed of an ungovernable temper and while in prison here, Jailer Piersall had to put him in solitary confinement to prevent him from injuring some of the other prisoners. He was under heavy bond to appear before the Circuit Court at its next term to answer an indictment for complicity in the murder of Ed Campbell and John McKnight, who were killed during the big fight between the French and Eversole factions at the November term of the Circuit court in Hazard in 1889. The details of the combat are familiar to most of our readers having been fully brought out to the trial of Joe Davidson for the same offense last fall.

The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, February 11, 1891

Among those present at the Courthouse Wednesday were two of more than local fame, viz; B. F. French, of this city, and one of the principal figures of the Perry county war, and Boone Logan the organizer and leader of the movement that culminated in the utter destruction of Craig Tolliver and his gang, and which terminated the Rowan county troubles.

Circuit Court begins her May 4th, and the attorneys in the French-Eversole case are getting ready for another big legal fight. Circuit Court begins at Hazard on the same day.

The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, April 22, 1891

Frank Polly, one of the Eversole faction in the late Perry county trouble and who was released from jail under bond of several thousand dollars, was on his way to attend Circuit Court here and stopped at a groggery on the head waters of Cane Creek, in Breathitt county, owned by Alex Davidson, a white man and Alex Wilson, a negro. The trouble arose over a woman present with whom it is said both Davidson and Wilson were sustaining illicit relations. In the row which ensued Polly was badly beaten over the head by Davidson and the later was shot through the body, the wound being fatal in a few minutes. Polly was arrested and landed in jail at Jackson, as was the negro Wilson, who, it is claimed by Polly’s friends fired the fatal shot, being actuated by jealousy on account of the mutual relations to the woman in question.

The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, May 6, 1891

Frank Polly, who was arrested in Breathitt county for the murder of Alex Davidson as mentioned in our last issue, was tried Tuesday and acquitted. He came here at once. He is pretty badly beaten up. Davidson’s negro partner, Alex Wilson, was held over in $2,000 bond to answer to Circuit Court for the crime.

The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, May 13, 1891

CIRCUIT COURT; Circuit court closed Saturday after having been in session two weeks. It started in with the largest docket ever known and did less towards cleaning it up. This was not the fault of anyone in particular, but the time of the Court was frittered away in attending to things that must be done but which made little progress in the ordinary work of the Court. What few jury cases were tried brought more than the usual number of hung juries which will necessitate the trial of these cases again. The trial of the Perry county cases was again postponed. There was several reasons for this. In the first place the prisoners were not anxious to be tried and in the second place Commonwealth's Attorney Bronston was called away by the fatal illness of his wife and Maj. Cardwell by the fatal injury to his wife's father, Capt. Todd of Frankfort. So a postponement was inevitable, as the claims for mileage, etc., of the witnesses must be passed on by the Judge and much valuable time was consumed in auditing these claims. The murder cases growing out of the Perry county feuds, were postponed until November and the other cases until next May. This will materially reduce the number of witnesses next time. At least $16,000 of bonds for the appearance of those men were forfeited this term. Several of the defendants came in afterwards with good reasons for their non-appearance, and the forfeitures were set aside; enough remains though to put a goodly sum into the treasury should the forfeiture of the other bonds be enforced. The bondsmen of Elhannon Walker, a negro, and one of the principal participants, delivered him to the Court and he was placed in jail.

An effort will be made to secure the pardon of George Chenault, who was sent up for one year for stealing John Howard's watch at Ford. The prisoner is evidently of very weak mental powers and has no idea of the enormity of the offense and made no effort to conceal it. He ought to be pardoned and probably will be.

The crowd of witnesses from Perry county brought some noted characters. Tallow Dick Combs a mulatto, was one of the Eversole's right hand men, and was an object of considerable curiosity. He is evidently a very intelligent man and is said to be close kin to one of Kentucky's shrewdest Democratic politicians. Goodloe Combs came down to speculate in witness claims and while here was gobbled upon an old indictment and placed under $1,000 for confederating. The man who did the cleanest swearing and stuck the closest to his text, was Bob Profit. According to his testimony he did not know a Winchester rifle when he saw it and never had a gun in his hand during the feud. B. F. French brought down the house when he testified that he bought twenty-two Winchester rifles and tried to buy a cannon. It was evident to all who heard French testify that for once Charley Bronston had met his match. All of Bronston's efforts to confuse him or make him were futile, and the straightforward manner in which he told his story made him many friends.

Probably the man who attracted the most attention was Calib Jones from Knott county. He is credited with having killed twenty-one men, seven of them being slain one morning before breakfast. He is said to have been a participant in the Rowan county war, and afterward took a hand in the Knox county troubles in which county he was jailer before becoming mixed up in the Perry county trouble.

The Grand jury was finally discharged Friday. As will be seen their work will not add greatly to the docket next term.

The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, May 20, 1891

The following dispatch to the Courier-Journal from London, Ky., with sound to our people very much like an item from Perry county. News has just reached here of the killing on Goose Creek in Clay county of John Hensley, better known as "Bad John" by one John Eversole, a nephew of the present county Judge of Clay. Bad blood has existed between these parties for some time, and this killing is only an end to another mountain feud. The killing was done at Eversole's house. Hensley having gone there to settle matters. He drew a 45-caliber revolver, but Eversole was too quick, and brought his Winchester into service, sending a bullet through Hensley's body. He lived only a short time. There is no excitement and no further trouble is expected.

The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, June 3, 1891

Circuit court Begins here in a few weeks and the famous French Eversole cases will again occupy the attention of our people. The idea that because open hostilities have ceased in Perry county, The warriors of the respective clans are anxious to smoke the pipe of peace, is all a mistake. B. F. French, of this city, was in Hazard a short time since on business and from indications he believed his enemies were meditating an attack on him and he left, coming away by an unfrequented road. Since his return he has received several letters, some of them from men high in authority, stating that had he remained longer he would have been killed, and also stating the belief that he would have been ambushed if he had left by the usual route.

The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, October 14, 1891

A TALE OF BLOOD Confession of the Whitakers of the Assassinations Committed by the Eversoles Shedding Light on Many Mysterious Murders—Other Convictions Will Follow The Whitaker brothers, after being sentenced by the Court and notified that they would be permitted to remain in jail here until the next term of the Court, sent for a representative of THE DEMOCRAT and gave the following account of the murders and assassinations which the Eversole gang had committed and of which they had knowledge. Wesley, the elder, has been one of the prominent actors on that side, while Will was never a member of the gang. Both seem heartily to repent of their misdeeds and gave their statements that justice might be done to those who were responsible for enticing them or rather the elder, into a life of crime. The time covers that bloody period of Perry county history between the spring of 1886 and the present time. They were advised not to say anything of the killing of Jameson, for which they were convicted and therefore refused to talk about it. They said that from the time of the first compromise between the warring factions in October 1885, just after Jameson was killed, there was a constant effort on the part of Joe Eversole, who was then living, and his clan, to waylay and kill B. F. French. It was during this period, in October, 1885, just after Jameson was killed, there was a constant effort on the part of Joe Eversole, who was then living, and his clan, to waylay and kill B. F. French. It is during this period, in October 1886, that William Gambrell, a Baptist preacher, was killed in Hazard by Joe and John Eversole and John Campbell. Campbell and Joe Eversole are dead and an indictment for this murder is now pending here against John Eversole. The Whitakers stated that they had often heard John Eversole say that his shot killed Gambrell, and that his victim was sinking in death when Joe Eversole shot him in the head. The plan to kill him was formed the night before and included the killing of French. The negro, Bill Walker, who is now in jail here, Jason Combs and others were hid in the stable of Robert Combs, directly opposite the residence of French, with instructions to kill him when he should be attracted to the door by the shooting of Gambrell. The next murder was that of E. C. Morgan in the fall of 1888. A second compromise of the factions had been effected and Morgan came home, relying on the truce. On Monday he had met George Eversole and others of that side, talked the troubles over and agreed to be friends. Morgan agreed to come to town the next morning and see others of that side for the same purpose. On Sunday night previous Judge Eversole and his wife had taken Jim Fox and Bud Guy behind them on horseback, from Eversole's residence, fifteen miles below Hazard, to the house of Ans. Combs, three miles below Hazard where they were concealed until Monday night, at which time they were placed on the leading from Morgan's house to Hazard, for the purpose of killing him the next morning as he went to town, which they did. For this murder Fox and Guy received six hundred dollars. They told Green Morris of this fact and offered to divide the reward if he would accompany them, but he did not do so. After Morgan was killed the wives of George and Joe Eversole and another woman met Fox and Buy back of town and relieved them of their guns. The prisoners said that they had heard George Eversole state that on the Sunday night he and his wife brought Fox and Guy to murder Morgan, they were riding white horses which were covered to prevent recognition. One of the most atrocious murders, and one for which as yet no indictment to have been found, was that of Riley Lovings in August 1889. He was a man of considerable wealth and had all time been a friend to the Eversoles. Some time before his death he became surety to the Master Commissioner for some logs. Before the bond was due, Eversole was wasting his property and Lovings sued him and secured an attachment. This angered Eversole and he had Lovings arrested and carried to Covington on the charge of allowing an illicit still to be operated on his premises. While the old man was in jail at Covington, Green Morris and John Smith went to his home, burned his barn and shot a fine mule, which escaped from the burning building. Mrs. Lovings gave birth to a child that night and but for the efforts of the midwives in attendance, the house would have been burned also. When Lovings returned from Covington he sold his farm in order to leave that neighborhood, although George Eversol had assured him that no farther harm should befall him. After selling the farm Lovings and his son, Jim, were leaving it and when about half a mile from it, were fired upon from ambush by Green Morris, John and Lewis Smith. Morris shot the elder Lovings through the nose and eye, while his ankle was shattered by a ball from the rifle of Lewis Smith. He lingered awhile and died from his wounds. Jim Lovings was shot in the head by John Smith, but recovered. While this bloody deed was being done George Eversole and three of his men were playing cards near Eversole's residence in order to prove an alibi for the murderers by swearing they were playing with them. The trials of Joe Davidson and B. F. French have made the incidents of the big fight at Hazard in November 1889, familiar to most of our people. Wes Whitaker says that on Saturday before Court began, Green Morris came to him with a request from George Eversole to come to the latter's residence and submit to a sham arrest in order to afford an excuse for a large body of the Eversoles going to Court with arms. He went and found there George and John Eversole, Bud Guy, Job, Jess and "Blue Bill" Bowling and others. On the way to town and after getting there they were joined by Bill Walker. He Brasheads, several Combs' and others, the party numbering in all about twenty-five all well armed. Their object, as stated by Whitaker, was first to kill French as he came in or failing in this, to kill him in the Courthouse; next to kill Jess Fields, the jailer, and Tom Smith; after that to kill any of French's friends that could be found. As French did not come they determined to provoke a quarrel with his friends by rolling out a barrel of whisky by force from the saloon of Joe Davidson. Before this was done, Wes Whitaker got drunk and precipitated the fight by raising a row with Henry Davidson, who escaped into the Jailer's residence. The escape of Jess Fields and Bob Profit by jumping from the second story window of the Courthouse as John Eversole and Bud Guy entered it in search of them, and the killing of Ed Campbell by Joe Davidson a few minutes later, were detailed at length in the trial of Davidson here last November. The first shots of next morning were fired by Frank Polly, Bud Guy, Nuce and Bill Bowling from the Courthouse loft at some men on the graveyard hill near by. John McKnight, in company with Wes Whitaker and others, had spent the night in the Eversole fort and as he opened the door next morning pistol in hand he was shot and killed. After this the Eversoles left town and the fight ended. Shortly after, Mr. French moved to this city and went into business. He attended Common Pleas Court at Hazard in September and Wes, Whitaker stated that at that time he and Bud Guy were in ambush waiting for French, and that John Eversole and Josiah Combs the father-in-law of Joe Eversole had offered them two thousand dollars to kill him. Whitaker said the same offer had been made to other members of the faction and that John Eversole had vowed that he would never be tried for the murder of Gambrell until French was killed. This confession reveals many facts in connection with this noted band that have never before been known, and will doubtless lead to other convictions. The Whitakers feel that the Eversoles have treated them very badly in leaving them friendless and penniless to fight their battle for life alone after having been the instigators of nearly all their crimes. The Democrat, Wednesday, November 18, 1891.

Much interest was manifested this week in the trial of Wesley and William Whitaker which was begun Monday and which was not finished until Wednesday when the jury brought in a verdict of guilty and sending them to the penitentiary for life. The theory as the prosecution was outlined in our last issue. Wesley Whitaker was under indictment for an attempt to rape the wife of Robert Jameson, the woman being Whitaker's own cousin. Subsequent to this the two men met and exchanged shots without injury. The second day after this Jameson was shot on his own porch by concealed assassins. A peculiar handkerchief and other circumstances pointed to the Whitaker Bros. As the murderers. During the French and Eversole war the Whitakers were members of the later faction and having nothing to fear from the law which was helpless, openly boasted of the murder. The theory of the defense was that on the night of the murder they staid at the house of their brother Jim, twelve miles distant, and therefore could not have committed it. They brought their brother, Jim and two men named Morris and Smith to testify to the same fact. When Smith and Morris were put on the witness stand, however, they broke down and acknowledged they had been brought here to swear to the whereabouts of Will and Wes Whitaker on that fatal night, but that they really knew nothing about it. Jim Whitaker could not face the muscle and left before being called on to testify. Which their defense was gone and their guilt apparent to all. Capt. Hathaway made the best speech possible in a hopeless cause, but without avail. The speech of Mr. Bronston was a terrible arraignment of a state of affairs and rendered these things possible, and produced a marked effect on jury and spectators. Both the prisoners are married men, but Wesley has not lived with his wife for some time. Will has not been considered a very bad man, but Wesley is one of the worst even in Perry county. He has three indictments pending against him for rape or attempt to rape; two of the victims were his first cousins and the other was his wife's sister. He is also indicted with others for the murder of Campbell and McKnight. The Democrat, Wednesday, November 18, 1891.

GEORGE BUSH of Strong's Branch, has several indictments against him in the Breathitt Circuit Court. While at Winchester this week attending the French-Eversole trials, the Sheriff of Clark county arrested him and placed him in the hands of Wilson Baker, to be delivered to the jailer of starting from Fincastle, Bush jumped from the platform of the car, where he was across the bottom towards the mountain excited the wonder and admiration of all on board. The only one who did not enjoy this port, was Mr. Baker whose face wore an expressions similar to that of the boy who let the bird slip out of the case. The Jackson Herald, The Democrat, Wednesday, November 18, 1891.

John C. Eversole and Stephen Hogg, of Booneville, were in the city Wednesday and had an interview with the Whitaker boys in jail here. The Democrat, Friday, December 11, 1891.

Wesley Whitaker Makes Another Confession
 THE DEMOCRAT EXTRA of last week stated that John C. Eversole was in the city and had visited the Whitaker brothers, who are confined in jail here under a life sentence. It was known then but not stated that the editor of The Sun was with him at the jail. The readers of The Sun of yesterday will see that the visit of the gentleman bore much fruit, and that Wesley Whitaker denied making many of the statements that were published in THE DEMOCRAT and Courier Journal soon after his conviction and stated the B. F. French asked the questions and dictated the answers that made up those statements and that French procured the statements by offering certain inducements to him. We have no bias in the French-Eversole feud, but we know the facts to be that after the conviction of the Whitaker boys they sent for French repeatedly, as is well known, before he would go to see them, and that he never saw them alone; and that the statements that were published in THE DEMOCRAT and Courier Journal were not dictated by French but were given voluntarily by Wesley Whitaker. It is true that he felt at that time that the Eversoles had treated him badly in not supporting him in his trial, and that fact doubtless prompted him to talk freely. The truth is that Whitaker told the editor of THE DEMOCRAT more than was published, which may form the basis of a future article and that in the presence of the editor alone the Whitakers heard the statement read and subscribed their names to it as a correct statement of facts. The statements in The Sun reads more like an article in defense of John C. Eversole in the case in which he is charged with killing Wm. Gambrell, than it does like a honest confession from Whitaker. It begins Gambrell in the middle of it and rehashes the Gambrell case in a separate article. It is true that Mr. Eversole consented for his case to be tried here, but that is not strange when the records in the case show that he had sworn in Perry county that he could not obtain a fair trial there on account of prejudice against him. As a matter of fact the Commonwealth has twice answered ready to try him here, and both times he has had the case continued. Whitaker's story that he lay in ambush a few months ago to kill French, but that it was him own concern and that Eversole and Combs had not offered him money to do it is in keeping with his other statements in The Sun and the true is to be read with a grain of salt. The grand jury of this county investigated the charge preferred by Whitaker against French that he cut him at the Central Hotel, and decided that Whitaker made the cut himself for effect. We hope to get at the truth in all these cases. The Democrat, Wednesday, December 16, 1891.

JOE MINARD who was brought from the Laurel county jail to testify against the Whitaker boys for the killing of Robert Jameson, was last week sent to the penitentiary for three years for forgery. It was thought by many that Minard had a hand in killing Jameson.

A dispatch from Barbourville says Green Morris was arrested in Clay county Tuesday for the murder of three men five ears ago in the French Eversole feud. It is probable that the latter portion is a mistake as he is out on bail for the crimes last mentioned. Some time ago he wrote a letter to B. F. French of this city, intimating a degree to see him and to talk over the matters connected with the feud as he is evidently tired of it. He was one of Eversoles most prominent lieutenants.

The Democrat, Friday, December 25, 1891.

GREEN MORRIS, one of the Eversole warriors who was on $ 5,000 bond was brought here Thursday by the Sheriff of Knox county. His former bondsman, Judge Josiah Combs had learned that Morris had written to Mr. French and becoming offended had refused to remain longer on his bond and had given him up. Him Morris, a brother of the prisoner, came on ahead and when the party arrived here a bond was in readiness signed by Harry Eversole and Morris was again released.

B. T. FIELDS, who was Sheriff of Perry county, and who was a witness at the trial of the French-Eversole cases here, was Monday elected Circuit Clark of Perry county.

The Democrat, Wednesday, August 5, 1892.

MONDAY'S correspondence from Frankfort to the Courier Journal says when Mr. Gay returns he will introduce a bill for the benefit of the Circuit Clerk of Clark. In August, 1890, there were transfers 1, by special enactment, 121 criminal cases growing out of the French-Eversole feud, from Perry county to Clark county. The effect was to completely blockade the docket, and there are now more suits pending than can possibly be disposed of before the expiration of Clerk C. B. Fox's term. Almost the entire time of Mr. Fox and his two deputies has been taken up by this extra work, for which he receives no pay, and meanwhile the civil cases, out of which the money is made, have had to be continued, and will be left on the docket when his term expires. Circuit Judge Morton, Common Pleas Judge Scott and Commonwealth's Attorney Bronston have given Mr. Fox strong statements as to the justice of the claim for $ 2,000 which the bill will ask for. There are several precedents and besides, it will be seen that to allow Mr. Fox's claim will be much cheaper than it would have been for the State to have sent the militia to Perry county to aid in holding the court. T. g. Stuart, M. C. Lisle, C. E. Rees, C. B. Fox and J. H. Evans were in Frankfort Monday urging the claim.

B. F. French returned Saturday from Hazard where he had been to attend court. From what his friends had heard grave apprehensions were felt for his safety. He was obliged to leave the place by a comparatively unknown road, as he believed all the principal roads were being watched for the purpose of killing him.

Circuit Court

Wednesday the court entered upon the trial of John C. Eversole for the murder of Wm. Gambrill. Much conflicting testimony has been elicited. That Joe Eversole shot him is established without doubt; that John Eversole and John Campbell were on the street armed with Winchester rifles is also well established. As to whether they actually shot Gambrill or not must be determined from a mass of conflicting testimony. The whole week has been consumed in taking testimony and the case will probably be argued today and given to the jury.

Circuit Court

Circuit Court adjourned Saturday and the jury that for the past ten days had been compelled to listen to the tiresome iteration of the details of the killing of Wm. Gambrill, and in addition had inflicted upon them five speeches, some of them four hours long, were among those who most gladly welcomed the time. The trial of John C. Eversole for this killing had occupied the attention of the court since the third day. The varied nature of the testimony may be understood from the conclusions of the individual members of the jury which was worse hung than is usually found. Of the twelve members, one was for hanging, two for life imprisonment, one for twenty-one years in the pen, one for ten years, three for two years and four for acquittal. The speeches of Capt. Hathaway, Maj. Cardwell and Judge Ben Buckner, for the defense, and Ed. Jouett and Charlie Bronston for the Commonwealth for the prosecution, may have had some effect in befuddling the jury, but their conclusions were thoroughly in accord with the mixed nature of the testimony.

S. N. (Pole) FRENCH was nominated for Circuit Judge by the Republicans at Harlan C. H. this week. Henry Howard was nominated for Commonwealth's Attorney. Both the candidates are from Harlan county, and the other counties are mad about it. French is a brother of B. F. French, and feelings engendered by the French-Eversole feud are cropping out. Floyd Hall or J. P. Marrs will probably be French's Democratic opponent, and, although the district is heavily Republican, it is thought the Democrats will win.

GREEN MORRIS, who is prominent among the prisoners sent from Perry county here, and who was one of the fighters, in the Eversole ranks, had a row with J. M. Eversole at Hyden. Pistols were drawn but friends interfered and prevented bloodshed.

The Democrat, Wednesday, December 21, 1892.

Later reports from the fight in Perry county indicate that it had no connection with the French-Eversole feud, although the principal participants were sons of the late Joe Eversole and Jesse Fields, a leading partisan of French on the other. Fields had his arm broken and was shot in the side, though not dangerously. Jesse Hale Combs, a negro who figured prominently in the old feud was killed either accidentally or by mistake for another as he had nothing to do with the fuss. Mrs. Josiah Combs was accidentally shot in the breast, It was thought by many here that John C. Eversole was one of the participants, but it proved to be his nephew.

The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, May 24, 1893

THE Governor has signed the bill allowing such cases as the Perry county cases of the county to be sent back to their original home for trial. They are still on our docket and will remain there until called up again. There is a feeling that these cases should be filed away. Strenuous efforts have been made to bring the parties to justice, but without avail save to cost the State thousands of dollars for witness fees and life expenses. A few of their poor ignorant retainers, such as W. S. and Will Whittaker, have been sent to the penitentiary for crimes growing out of the feud, but every unprejudiced observer believes that none of the principals will ever be convicted. We do not believe that these cases can be transferred to Perry county without a renewal of hostilities. While to a casual observer everything seems quiet in that section now, a revival of the old scenes connected with the feud would bring on hostilities again without doubt. The principals have gone away. French is living in this city; John Eversole, the real leader on the other side, is living in Booneville, both far removed from the seat of their ancient warfare. Were they brought together again with their feudal retainers, with everything calculated to arouse the old passions, it could hardly be otherwise than bloodshed would follow. Attached to both sides were a class of men who cared nothing for the real causes at issue, but were partisans for revenue only; blood suckers who made their living off the wealthy leaders on each side. These have found their occupation gone since things have become quiet and would gladly bring about a renewal of hostilities, and who can doubt that they would soon find or make an opportunity? We are glad to have our docket clear of these cases, but do not wish to see Perry county again the theater of such scenes as have been enacted within her borders in the past, and consequently hope that Judge Scott will file these cases away.

The Winchester Democrat Wednesday 3-29-1893

The Legislature has passed an act by which the Perry county cases growing out of the French-Eversole feud may be sent back from the Clark to the Perry Circuit Court. As the transfer of these cases from the latter county has resulted in restoring the peace, it seems to us bad policy to send them back. This is certainly a mistake and we believe the people of Perry county with one mind will oppose it. They have suffered enough. They are now on the highway to prosperity and should be allowed to go uninterrupted. If Clark county has contributed her share, let some other county take it up and finish the work. We have not seen the act and do not know whether or not the transfer of the cases to Perry is mandatory.—Jackson Hustler

The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, April 12, 1893

To those who attended the Perry county trials here the names in the following account from the Jackson Hustler will be familiar, "Last Tuesday a difficulty arose between Sheriff David Combs and ex-Jailer Jesse Fields about what we did not learn. In the melee a colored man was killed, Jesse Fields was shot in the breast, John Eversole was shot through the wrist and Mrs. Josiah Combs was shot through the body."

That terrible incubus that, like the Old Man of the Sea to Sinbad, the Sailor, has weighted down the docket of the Circuit Court for years, causing local business to become congested until the docket was the largest ever known in the history of the county, is at last disposed of. We allude to the various cases growing out of the French-Eversole feud and known as the Perry county cases. For a long time it has been a settled belief in the minds of our people that the leaders could never be convicted and that if any were ever punished it would be the comparatively innocent dupes and tools. It is known that the old feud is only slumbering in Perry county, and it is believed that it would break out afresh if these cases should be sent back. Upon motion of Commonwealth's Attorney Crutcher, Wednesday morning, Judge Scott ordered them filed away with leave to re docket upon motion of the Commonwealth's Attorney either of this district or that of Perry county. In fact they are filed away during good behavior. This action was based upon a letter from Hon. Z. T. Hearst, of Campton, and the following from the members of our local bar:

Hon. B. A. Crutcher, Commonwealth's Attorney For Twenty-Fifth Judicial District:
The undersigned members of the Winchester bar state that since the fall of 1890, we have been employed and retained in a professional capacity, in the prosecutions that were transferred from the Perry Circuit Court to this Court for trial, which are commonly known as the Perry county cases and cases growing out of the French-Eversole feud; that owing to the fact that it is next to impossible for the Commonwealth to procure the attendance of all the material witnesses for the prosecution of these cases, it is our judgement and opinion that a further prosecution of these cases will not effect the condition of any of the defendants; that a further continuance of these cases will work a severe hardship to the defendants, most of whom are poor men and unable to procure the attendance of their witnesses, and that the interest of the Commonwealth will best be subserved by filing these cases away in this court.

We respectfully submit that the end sought to be attained by the Commonwealth by the transfer of these cases to-wit: A cessation of the trouble between these principals has been attained, the leaders having left Perry county, and it is further our judgement of the substantial, law abiding citizens of Perry county, that it would result in great misfortune to the people of that county and endanger a revival of hostilities if said cases should be remanded to that county. We refer to and make a part of this statement a letter written by Hon. Z. T. Hearst to Hon. T. J. Scott, Judge of this court.

The State Gives Up

The filing away of the Perry county cases in the Circuit Court of Clark county was distinctly another victory of mountain lawlessness over justice. It was a victory for which the Circuit Judge presiding in Clark county is in no sense to blame. The difficulties surrounding the cases were not of his making nor within his control. It may be that under the circumstances the filing away of the cases was the best thing that could have been done. Nevertheless such an ending of the prosecution is a humiliating defeat for the State. It is a piece with the half-hearted policy that has characterized our treatment of these mountain troubles from first to last.

These cases were transferred to Clark county because of the impossibility of securing a fair and peaceable trial of them at Hazard. They were the outgrowth of the bloody feud between the French and Eversole factions in Perry county, and the population of that county and of neighboring counties was so intimidated by fear and so influenced by sympathy that there was clearly no chance of bringing the offenders to justice by the usual methods Court could be held for the purpose under protection of troops, but every imaginable obstacle prevented the service of process or the procuring of a jury.

Mountain trials of the participants in mountain feuds had rarely been more than a farce. In this emergency it was enacted by the Legislature in 1890 that the Commonwealth might transfer such cases to a county safely removed from the scene of disturbance whenever it became manifest that a trial could not be had in the ordinary way. Under this act the cases against the surviving participants in the French-Eversole feud were transferred to Clark county. They were very numerous and for three years so obstructed the civil business of the court in Clark county that the people there became naturally anxious to be relieved of the burden.

Moreover, it appeared to be no easier to secure a conviction in Clark than in Perry.

Witnesses could not be procured and no case at all could be made out against the surviving leaders in the feud. The prosecution could do nothing. Since the only effect of the transfer was to cumber the Clark county docket and since it would have been worse than useless to send the cases back to Perry county, it was determined to file them away, upon the promise of the defendants to behave themselves.

So ends the attempt to punish the outlaws who fought the latest, the bloodiest and the most cruel of all the feuds that have disgraced the Kentucky mountains. The law has confessed itself powerless even with the aid of unusual methods. The drag net of justice caught a few little fish, but the big fellows all broke through the meshes. Meanwhile, the spirit of the feud is said to be still alive in Perry county. The principal leaders have left, but such a feud always produces other quarrels. It is thought to be unsafe for certain of the old leaders to enter the county. To a community which has thus kept alive the love and purpose of lawlessness, the Commonwealth of Kentucky sends confessions of its inability to punish the murderers. After such a confession it may be imagined how much the assassins of the old gang will be restrained by the feeble threat that the cases, now filed away in helplessness, will be restored unless the assassins behave themselves. It would have been better for the cause of justice if the transfer to Clark county had never been made. The State has seemed to do its best and has failed. The feud is still a victor over law.

This result is to be regretted, chiefly for the encouragement it may give to the survivors of the feuds in Perry county or elsewhere to resume their quarrels, imagining themselves able always to baffle the courts as they have done heretofore. The history of previous attempts to bring criminals of this class to trial and proper punishment is a story which Kentuckians do not rehearse with pride. Still, there has been a gradual improvement in the condition of that region, in spite of the many humiliating defeats of justice. Railroads have let in the light. The schoolmaster has penetrated the valleys. The capitalist has incited to new ambitions. The prisons have claimed some of the lawless. Others have been compelled to leave the State. Some have become capitalists. In most counties where the feud flourished a better public sentiment now condemns it. Breathitt is one of the most orderly counties in the State. Rowan has been quiet since Craig Tolliver's gang was exterminated. The feuds of Knott and Bell and Harlan are at an end, and the Pike county crowd has been hanged, murdered, imprisoned or quieted. Perry persisted longest and even Perry, forced into quiet by a little transient display of determination on the part of the State, has had a chance to feel the force of better influence and to do something toward the cultivation of a better public sentiment. The redemption of the mountains will be completed as it was begun, by the material development of the section, the building of railroads, the infusion of new ideas, along with new population including the pedagogue and the editor. It is to be hoped that the State's exhibition of weakness in the Perry county cases may not encourage any unreconstructed feudalists to attempt a revival of the old quarrels.—Courier Journal The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, October 25, 1893 B. Eversole - French Feud 1894 - 1895	The Harmonizer Capt. Todd Hall was in Trigg County last week, and the interviewer of the Cadiz Telephone got in his work with the following result: “Capt. Hall is a most excellent gentleman, and we do not wonder that all the Legislators before whom he has appeared have become smitten with him and promptly honor all drafts he draws upon them. On a certain occasion Capt. Hall went from his home in Clark county to the mountain counties bordering upon the West Virginia line, when and where the French-Eversole factions were endeavoring with might and main to exterminate one another. The Captain made it a point to see each of the chiefs of these outlaws and expostulate with them on their mistaken ideas touching high moral ideas and various holy admonitions. Col. French did seem to be pleased with the Captain's Sunday school ideas and advised Hall to get away as speedily as possible. Maj. Eversole was furious and looked to be as blood-thirsty as Mercutio. He too advised the young man to get out. Hall, who had, without flinching looked into the enemies cannon-mouth, when its gunner took dead aim at him, vomiting flaming bushels of death and destruction at his boys in gray, began to take advise tendered by fools, and pulled for the lowlands, occasionally looking back to see if the field was “clear in the rear” (something, by the way, which Todd says had never occurred to his mind to do before, as he had always looked for the enemy in front). Getting home safely, he said, “By thunder! I missed a narrow scowering.” A few months after he was elected to the place he now holds; and one day while attending to his own business a member of the House called Capt. Hall to him asking permission to introduce him to a friend. It was Col. French. “Why yes”, said the Colonel, “I know you. You are the great harmonizer.” The story leaked out and Capt. Hall not only got the credit of bringing peace to the vendetta, but also got the nick-name of being the greatest “harmonizer” in Kentucky. The Captain likes the word, uses it, and gets much comfort out of his efforts to harmonize the discords, pouring oil on the troubled waters so to speak, and making the human race one happy family.” The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, January 31, 1894 The Court of appeals has reversed the decision of the Bell Circuit Court by which Tom Smith was sentenced to imprisonment for life for the killing of McKnight, at the famous fight between the French and Eversole forces at Hazard, several years ago. His case was transferred to this county along with all the others of the two factions, although he was not before the court at the time. He afterward came in and gave bond to the court at this place. As will be remembered, these cases were filed away after several long and fruitless efforts to secure convictions. Last summer the Perry county grand jury issued a new indictment against Smith for the same crime. He was arrested and lodged in jail, and the case was transferred to Bell county. Smith denied the right of the court to try him under the circumstances and made no defense, in consequence of which he received a life sentence. He appealed to the Court of Appeals where the findings of the lower court was reversed. Judge Hazelrigg delivering the opinion of the higher court. He says that as these cases were filed away in this court with leave to redocket he may yet be tried here if the court should desire it, and for this reason the second indictment and all proceedings under it were illegal. JOE ATKINS, of this county, was taken to Perry county a few days ago charged with participation in the killing of Judge Josiah Combs, of Hazard. Atkins was one of B. F. French's adherents during the troublesome times in Perry county and as Mr. French is not a man to forget his friends, he went with Atkins to see him through the present trouble. Several were along fully armed. The Sheriff of Perry county was to meet the party at Jackson and guard them to hazard. Atkins is under indictment for several things in Perry and went u there recently to stand trial, but the cases were put off. This probably gave rise to the charge that he was concerned in the killing of Judge Combs, but Atkins says he never heard of the killing until he reached Jackson on his way home. Atkins played a prominent part in the Perry county troubles but since he has been living in Clark he has been a quiet, peaceable citizen. It is also said by those who have investigated the matter that Jesse Fields, who was reported to have been shot in escaping capture, had nothing to do with the killing and was not shot as stated, but was quietly at home at the time.

THE city dailies this week contain the startling news that Fult. French, Joe Atkins and others have been arrested and are languishing in the Perry county jail charged with the murder of Judge Combs. There is not a word of truth in the report. French and Atkins are both at home in this county and Judge Combs was killed weeks ago. French was here at the time and Atkins was at Jackson.
The Winchester Democrat, Friday, October 19, 1894.

I hope the murder of Judge Combs will not lead to renewed hostilities between the followers of myself and the Eversole connections. God knows I have had enough of it. It has cost me a fortune and almost ruined me for life. I am just building myself up again in a new community where my wife and children are making new friends, but I will not stay away and let my friends up here suffer. I still have good health and a clear mind. My fortune, too, is ample to keep my friends out of trouble, and it is at their disposal. Most of my followers are doing well, while those of the Eversoles' faction whom we have not sent to H—I are on the verge of starvation. They broke up my business and ran me out of this county but retribution has overtaken them all in some form."

The Perry County Trouble
Mr. Davidson, a special representative of the Cincinnati Enquirer, was here yesterday. He was on his way home from Jackson where he has been to learn what he could of the reported outbreak in Perry county. He met B. F. French at Jackson and printed the following interview from him.
B. F. French, who, in 1880, fled Perry County to save his life and has been living in Winchester since, reached here at an early hour his morning from some point in Perry County. His horse was jaded and flecked with foam, attesting the bad roads to which he was subjected last night. Mr. French successfully parried all questions as to where he came from, though the presumption is that he was in the very near vicinity of Hazard, 35 miles east of here, yesterday, when Judge Hall remanded his friends, Fields and Atkins, to jail without bail.

So fearful is he of being assassinated by the Eversole people that he travels through Perry County only at night, and then over unfrequented roads and along narrow cowpaths. French knows every foot of this hilly, impenetrable country as an Apache chieftain knows the stretches of hot, trackless sands of Arizona, and this knowledge makes it possible for him to move about in comparative safety. He looks like anything but the intrepid leader of a blood thirsty and implacable faction of mountain vendetta, which his long connection with the savage warfare in this region causes people to think him. In appearance he is a well-gowned country lawyer, his clothes are tastily made and his linen immaculate. He is not over 5 feet 6 inches in height and his weight is about 160 pounds. His face is round and chubby and his eyes are mottled blue. He has been moving about this town all day as unconcerned as though his name were not now a terror to all those who have for ten years been following the ill-starred fortunes of the dead Eversole, whose assassination soon after the outbreak of the feud set all the bloody mountaineers thirsting for gore. The Enquirer correspondent had a two hours talk with French this afternoon French discusses with what is the utmost frankness that last deal of trouble and bloodshed which his presence in the mountains has caused during the past ten years. He roughly estimates that since the beginning of hostilities between them and the Eversole 3 men have been killed, as they fell from ambush, but he protests most earnestly that he has had nothing whatever to do with the killing of any of them except the three or four who fell during the street battles, which the crowd under his leadership had with one captained by Joe Eversole and John Campbell, in the town of Hazard, in 1888.

“I know all my enemies, and even a good many of my friends, believe I instigated the murder of Judge Combs.” French said. “but if I were going to die this minute I could face by God with a conscience as clear as yours of the least complicity in that affair. I have been placed under suspicion by a great many people because those accused of the murder of the old man are known to be my friends, and because at their preliminary examination before a Magistrate I furnished their bond. I haven’t been nearer than 12 miles of Hazard for five years. When Combs was killed I was at my home in Winchester, and haven’t been nearer than 12 miles of Hazard for five years. When Combs was killed I was at my home, in Winchester, and haven’t been in Perry County for several months. I am satisfied that neither Fields nor Atkins had anything more to do with the murder of the old man than you had and when they are tried at Barboursville we can establish an alibi by at least 30 unimpeachable witnesses. The old man had more enemies than anybody I know in the country. For years he had been pursued by friends relentlessly, and besides he embittered a large number of people against him by the course he pursued in hunting up old land titles and dispossessing people who had occupied farms unhindered for 30 years or more. Some of those people goaded to desperation by his abuses and persecutions, put him out of the way, though who it was I have not the remotest idea. As to Boone Frazier, the third suspect, who is said to have been wounded by the posse of citizens who pursued the assassins of Combs, I know positively that he was not wounded, because I saw him in this town a week after the murder, and he did not have a scar on his body.

The Winchester Democrat, Friday, December 21, 1894.

THE Cincinnati dailies during the past week have contained columns concerning the outbreak of the old French-Eversole feud in Perry county, but, as usual, there is little fire for the quantity of smoke. B. F. French is presented as scouring the county with an armed force at his back, when, on the contrary, he is at home in this city and has been for several days. He says he has not been near Perry county for months; that no effort has ever been made to interfere with the courts; that no fights have occurred, etc. Joe Atkins, who has been living at Ford, and Jessie Fields, who is well remembered here, were accused of the murder of Judge Josiah Combs a few weeks ago. At that time the trouble is said to have occurred near these men had reached Hazard. Only two shots were fired and these were by Will Combs and Sam Killgore, son and nephew of Judge Combs, and these shots were fired in the air by a couple of drunken men, and out of this small matter grew the whole excitement. Fields and Atkins were afterwards indicted and their cases were transferred to Bourbonville where they are now in jail. The intimation that the Court at Hazard manipulated these cases in favor of French’s friends, is absurd. It will be remembered that Judge Hall, a Democrat occupies the bench in this strong Republican district and this feud is responsible for it. The Republicans nominated Napoleon French, a brother of Fult. French, and the Eversole faction refused to support him, and this elected Hall. Another case against Fields was sent to Magoffin county. Some time last year, after Jesse Fields had returned to Hazard, he was shot by a couple of the Eversole boys and his shoulder was broken. After being so desperately wounded, he seized a rifle from the hands of his little son and fired the shot accidentally killed Jess Hale Combs, a negro, who figured prominently in the cases here. He was indicted to Magoffin county. B. F. French says there will be no trouble in proving that at the time of the murder of Judge Combs and Fields and Atkins were in Breathitt county.

COL. GAITHERS, who was sent by Gov. Brown to investigate the Perry county trouble, reported there was no disturbance and everything was going on as usual. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, December 25, 1894.

SLOWLY but surely Jessie Fields, one of the Perry county men who figured so prominently in the big trials here, is getting out of this troubles. At Salyersville, Saturday, he was tried for killing Jesse Hale Combs, a negro who was one of the Eversole men. The killing occurred at Hazard nearly two years ago, and Fields was acquitted on the ground of self-defense. Two other cases are still pending against him in the Salyersville court. One for shooting a son of the late Joe Eversole and another for shooting young Eversole's grand-mother, Mrs. Polly Ann Combs.

A DISPATCH from Lexington to the Louisville Times says: A gentleman from Jackson who arrived here to day says it was reported in Jackson last night that B. F. French, one of the principals in the French-Eversole war sent word to "Bad" Tom Smith's attorneys to take his case to the Court of Appeals, and that all expenses would be paid. Smith is the man under sentence to hang May 31 for the murder of Dr. Rader. The gentleman continued: "The law-abiding citizens of Breathitt are getting very tired of French's methods and the interest he has taken in the case of Smith, a man who ought to be hung on general principles, but no one can blame Fult French for trying to help Smith. The latter stood by French at a time when he needed help, and anybody that knows French, , knows that he stands by his friends till the last. We hope and believe Smith will be hung but don't blame French for trying to get him out of trouble.

It is reported at Jackson that Boone Frazier wants to turn State's evidence in the Combs murder case, but is prevented from doing so by friends of Fields and Adkins, who are guarding him constantly.

A dispatch from Barbourville of Friday says: "The attorneys for the defense in the cases against Fields and Adkins for the murder of Judge Combs in Perry county have filed affidavits in support of a motion for a continuance. The motion was overruled and the trial set for next Thursday. The defense also asks that the Commonwealth pay the expenses of the witnesses for the defense, and that subpoenas for twenty-three more parties at Jackson be issued and sent out for execution. The expense to the Commonwealth will be something enormous as the mileage and attendance of witnesses will amount to thousands of dollars.
The Winchester Democrat, Friday, April, 26, 1895

Detective George Drake passed through here Friday with Mrs. Combs, widow of Shade Combs and Ben Thomas, who were on their way to Barbourville to testify in behalf of the commonwealth in the trial of Jesse Fields and Adkins. It is said they took care of Boone Frazier, who the state claims, was shot while trying to escape after Judge Combs was killed.

The Fields-Adkins Trial

The trial of Jesse Fields and Joe Adkins, at Barbourville for the murder of Judge Combs, of Hazard, has attracted much attention throughout the State. Hundreds of witnesses have attended and whose claims amount to more than three thousand dollars. It has lately been decided that Perry county and not the State must pay these. There has been some of the tallest lying ever done on the witness stand. A number of witnesses have sworn positively that they saw Joe Adkins fire the shot while others have sworn that he was in Breathitt county, thirty-five miles away at the time. But little evidence has been adduced to connect Fields with the crime. For a while it was thought it would go hard with Adkins, but public sentiment at Barbourville seems now to indicate his acquittal. Col. Breckenridge is chief attorney for the defense and special trains will be run to hear him speak. The speaking will probably begin to-day.
The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, April, 30, 1895

The trial of Jesse Fields and Joe Adkins for the murder of Judge Combs, which has been in progress at Barbourville for some time, ended Thursday. Contrary to the expectations of many, both were found guilty and given a life sentence. The case was one of the hardest ever fought in the mountains. The amount of perjured testimony given must have been enormous, as quite a number of witnesses swore positively that they saw Joe Adkins fire the fatal shot, and perhaps a larger number swore at the time of the killing he was in Breathitt county thirty miles away. The whole story of the French-Eversole feud was gone over again on the witness stand. The witness claims for attendance and mileage will, it is said, amount to more than $10,000. By a recent ruling of the Attorney-General in a similar case, Perry county will have to pay the greater part of this sum. The State has been freely gouged by the ever-ready and always-willing witness in the mountain counties, and when these witnesses are compelled to look to Perry county for payment the witness business will fall several points in that part of Eastern Kentucky.

Perry County Will Have to Foot the Bill

The Clerk of the Court, in allowing the witness claims for the attendance and mileage

A Dangerous Citizen
There must have been some pretty tall lie swearing in the Fields-Adkins trial as it appears from the testimony that they were in Two places at the same time. This matter should be looked into and the guilty parties sent to the pen. The perjurer is a dangerous citizen and should be gotten rid of as soon as possible.—Jackson Hustler

The Richmond Register thinks that Field and Adkins ought to be thankful to get a life sentence instead of taking an appeal. It says: “Knox should learn a lesson from Breathitt or borrow some of its nerve. Instead of giving them the tightened end of a rope, which they richly deserved, the jury in the case of Field and Adkins on trial for the cowardly assassination of Judge Josiah Combs, allowed cut-and-dried testimony of venal witnesses and the slick tongues of shrewd lawyers to get the better of their judgement and patriotism and brought in a life sentence. The prisoners only smiled while their lawyers entered a motion for a new trial which they hope will give them liberty, but which should give them what Patrick Henry deemed its alternative.”

The Execution of Bad Tom Smith at Jackson.
“WORSE than affairs in Breathitt county,” which a few years ago was the worst that could have been said of any community, can now no longer be truthfully averred of that action. The church, the schoolhouse and the newspaper have done their civilizing work and instead of crime being avenged by the bullet of the bushwhacker or the rope of the lyncher, the stern majesty of the law, without haste, without hate, but terrible in its awful simplicity, enforces the penalty of the ancient law, “Who so sheddeth man’s blood, by man shall his blood be shed.”
An object lesson of the stern majesty of the law, an account of which will take its place among the traditions of the mountains and which will be handed down to future generations, was the execution Friday of Tom Smith at Jackson for the murder of Dr. Rader last February.
The day was beautiful and several thousand persons were present including many women. An excursion was run from Lexington and a number from here went up to see the execution. Those present say it resembled a huge picnic or holiday more than anything else. Several days ago Smith professed conversion and at an early hour he was taken under a strong guard to the river where with manacled hands and feet he was baptized by a couple of Baptist ministers. The scene was a most impressive one and strong men wept. He was taken back to jail and the hours sped on until noon, the time set for the execution. Just before the hour fixed Smith told the sheriff that he had been forgiven for all his other crimes, but was not for the murder of Dr. Rader. He telegraphed to Gov. Brown asking for time but the latter refused to interfere and the execution proceeded. On the Scaffold he made he made a long talk confessing his various crimes interspersed with appeals to God for mercy. K. J. Hampton and John Bosley were there in the interest of the Louisville Post and the following extracts are from their report:
“He and Joe Adkins ambushed Joe Eversole and Mick Combs. Joe Adkins fired the fatal shot and he afterwards shot Combs and Eversole. He then took $30 from Eversole’s pocket. He shot at John McKnight, but as Bob Profit was shooting at the same time, could not tell who killed him.
“I shot and killed Bob Cornet while he was sitting on a log. Jack Combs was with me. “He said he was with B. F. French, Joe Adkins, Jesse Field and Boone Frazer at Field’s house last fall, when they planned the murder of Judge Josiah Combs. He said he was wounded at the time and could not go with them.
“I heard Atkins say afterward that he fired the shot that killed Combs. I also heard French speak of the job.
“After making this statement to the reporters he talked to the crowd and warned the young men of the dangers of whiskey and bad women. He told how in a drunken delirium he had killed Dr. Rader. He said:
“No man paid me to kill Rader. I was drunk and Catherine McQuinn roused me from my sleep and said: “He is fixing to kill you.” I jumped up and fired two shots; one of them killed him.”

The preachers then sang, “Guide Me, Oh Thou Great Jehovah,” in which Smith joined as he walked around on the top of the scaffold. After this he knelt under the gallows and prayed most fervently for God to have mercy on him. He arose and another song was sung.
“He then roamed again under the gallows and prayed most pitifully. The black cap was placed on his head and his last words were, “God have mercy upon me.” Sheriff Breck Combs spring the trap.”

B. F. French Indicted
It is said that B. F. French, of this city has been indicted in Perry Circuit Court for complicity in the murder of Judge Josiah Combs, of Hazard, for which Joe Adkins and Jesse Fields are now under sentence of life imprisonment. Boone Frazier of Breathitt who, it is said, was wounded at the time Combs was killed was also indicted. Just before Tom Smith was hung at Jackson this Spring, he made a confession in which he alleged that French and Frazier were both connected with the crime.

Without Authority
Some time ago B. F. French, of this city, was indicted by the grand jury of Perry county for complicity in the murder of Judge Josiah Combs, of Hazard. Sunday, W. A. Byrd, of Wolfe county a Deputy United States Marshall, came here armed with a bench warrant from the Clerk of the Perry Circuit Court and arrested Mr. French. The latter applied at once to police Judge Jonett for a writ of habeas corpus which was granted and made returnable before Judge Scott.

Without hesitation Judge Scott decided that a federal Official had no authority to serve a civil process from the State court and directed that the warrant be placed in the hands of Sheriff Hodgkin to make the arrest. Mr. French was much gratified at this decision as Byrd is a personal enemy and French believes the whole scheme was gotten up to procure his arrest, and while he was being taken to Hazard, to procure his assassination. A letter from S. N. French, his brother, informs him that Judge Howard, the Circuit Judge of that district, had arranged to allow him bail, but the sum is not mentioned. We have no desire to shield Mr. French from any punishment that he may deserve, but we would be loath to see him assassinated, especially while in the custody of the officials, and are glad that he will be in custody of Sheriff Hodgkin who will see that the course of justice shall not be obstructed either by his friends or his foes.

Fears Assassination

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 3—B. F. French leader of the famous French-Eversole mountain feud, who has been indicted on a charge of murdering Judge Combs will not go to Perry county for trial until he gets a guard. He fears the Eversoles will assassinate him.

B. F. French Arrested

Sometime ago Deputy Marshall Byrd, of Wolfe county came here with a bench warrant for the arrest of b. F. French charged with complicity in the murder of Judge Josiah Combs, of Hazard. A writ of habeas corpus brought the matter before Judge Scott, who decided that Byrd had no right to execute the writ, which was placed in the hands of Sheriff Hodgkin to execute. Mr. French was of counsel for the plaintiff in the big Alumbaugh case which has been pending in our Circuit Court for some days and was placed under surveillance by the Sheriff. He was also sick in bed for a day or two and was attended by a Deputy Sheriff, Saturday morning, he had recovered sufficiently and was placed in jail by Mr. Hodgkin.

Gibson Taylor and John Bosley went to Pineville to see Judge Hall, who opened court there yesterday, relative to securing bail. If not he will be taken to Perry county at once. Asa Davis, a merchant of that county, was here yesterday, and says it would be dangerous to take him there as his assassination would be probable.

The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, October 8, 1895

Some time ago, B. F. French, of this city had a suit in the Perry Circuit Court with one of the Eversole's. French was sick and unable to attend, and the case went against him by default. He asked for a new trial which was refused and then appealed to the higher court, which in the following decision reversed the decision of the lower court.

“Where a defendant, who resides in a county from that in which suit was pending against him, was unable by reason of his sickness to attend court and his attorney whom he had employed for that purpose failed to make defense for him, in consequence of which judgement by default was rendered against him, he was entitled to a new trial, and it was error to sustain a demurrer to his petition for a new trial alleging these facts and showing further that he had a good defense.

B. F. French Released on Bail

Monday John Bosley and Gibson Taylor went to Pineville to see Judge Hall in regard to obtaining bail for B. F. French. Hall is a Democrat and was elected in a strong Republican district by the help of the Eversole faction over S. N. French, the Republican nominee, who is a brother of B. F. French. In consequence, Hall is a strong partisan of the Eversole side and much doubt was expressed as to whether he would be granted bail. He was at first inclined to refuse, but when he was told that if Mr. French was killed and the old feud re-opened all the cases against the Eversoles, which are filed away here, would be again docketed and prosecuted, he relented and fixed the bail at ten thousand dollars, which might be given here. A number of our best citizens, both Democrats and Republicans went on his bond, Tuesday morning and he was released. While our people feel that if Mr. French has been guilty of complicity in the crime as charged he should be punished, but it is generally believed that he was the victim of persecution in this case, whatever may be said of the past.

The Winchester Democrat, Friday, October 11, 1895

The Fields-Adkins case in the Court of Appeals is attracting much attention. B. F. French was at Frankfort doing what he could to help his friends. The case was argued by W. J. Henderson for the State and Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge for the prisoners.
The Winchester Democrat, Friday, November 29, 1895

The trial of B. F. French, who is indicted in the Perry Circuit Court for the murder of Judge Josiah Combs and who is out on ten thousand dollars bail comes up at Hazard next week. French was indicted on the testimony of Green Morris who swore that French offered to hire him to kill Combs. This is not probable as Morris had been one of the most persistent and dangerous of the Eversoles and on more than one occasion, by his own testimony, he had watched the road for the purpose of killing French. If it was the purpose of French to have Combs killed he would hardly have chosen so persistent and deadly an enemy to accomplish his purpose.

The Winchester Democrat, Friday, December 6, 1895

A dispatch from Jackson of Wednesday says every lawyer at the Jackson bar except two has gone to Hazard where it is expected that B. F. French will be tried this week for complicity in the murder of the late Josiah Combs. Great interest is manifested there in the outcome of the trial. Those who are friendly to French are confident that he is a much-persecuted man, and will come clear, while others are satisfied that he will be convicted, with the many strong points in the proof against him.

A Change of Venue

B. F. French has returned from Hazard where he went last week to be present at the trial for complicity in the murder of Judge Combs for which he was under bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars. Judge Hall, the regular Circuit Judge, who was elected over Napoleon French, a brother of B. F. French, after a bitter contest did not preside and Judge Phillips of Knott county was ejected by the bar to preside. This was a victory for French as Phillips was a friend to that side. The principal struggle was the place to which the case should be transferred. French's enemies wanted it sent to Barbourville, Pineville, or somewhere over in that section. The death sentence given Tom Smith at Pineville and the life sentences given Fields and Adkins at Barbourville show the state of feeling there and of course French did not want to go there. It was finally decided by Judge Phillips to send it to Jackson where it will be tried. This decision suited French all right, as it will be where he can attend to it without trouble. The Jackson correspondent of the Courier-Journal says none of the Eversoles were present, but that Green Morris and Frank Polly, two of their lieutenants were at Hazard with a number of the old Eversole clan fully armed and that French's friends were equally as well fixed. It was further stated that the trial in Parry county would probably stir up the old trouble.
The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, December 17, 1895

A dispatch to the Louisville Post from Jackson says Breathitt county is without Sheriff or deputies. Breck Combs, present Sheriff, was to re-qualify but resigned. B.F. French of the French-Eversole feud is on his present bond and was here when the resignation took place.

Fulton French sued

Jackson, Ky., - Jan. 16 Fulton French, of the French-Eversole feud fame, has been sued in the Perry circuit court, at Hazard, for $10,000 damages by the widow of Judge Josiah Combs, charging French with being accessory to the murder of Judge Combs, but recovery can not be had on account of the statute of limitations.

William Smith who has been on trial at Williamsburg for the murder of Nick Combs and Joe Eversole, for the past week was acquitted Wednesday. B.F. French, of this city, was chief counsel for the defense.

The Winchester Democrat Friday, January 31, 1896

Bill Smith, a brother of "Bad Tom" Smith, who was hung at Jackson last year, has been under indictment for many years charged with the murder of Joe Eversole and Nick Combs who were shot from ambush near Hazard in August, 1888, and surrendered a short time ago. Eversole was the leader of the faction of that name in the French-Eversole feud and Combs was a mere boy who was killed, to prevent his telling of the murder of Eversole. Smith is now on trial at Williamsburg. The evidence is wholly circumstantial as were no eye witnesses. B.F. French, of this city, is defending him, and is assisted by K.D. Perkins, ex-county attorney of Whitley county. H.C. Eversole, brother of the murdered man is assisting in the prosecution.

The Winchester Democrat Friday, January 31, 1896

A correspondent writes to the daily papers as follows: "Developments during the past few days show that the opposing factions in Perry county, still cherish the bitterness engendered in the French-Eversole feud, may possibly come together with serious results. When the news of the reversal of the life sentence given Jesse Fields and Joe Atkins at their trial in Barbourville for the murder of Judge Combs reached here, the Eversole sympathizers were loud in their condemnation of the Court of Appeals and accused certain French men with taking a hand in the matter. They seem to be unable to look at the matter in any other light. The success of B. Fulton French in having a change of venue from Hazard has also worried them much. The widow of Judge Combs has brought suit against French for $10,000 damages, charging him with being an accomplice in the murder of her husband. Wednesday night the handsome residence of ex-Sheriff D.G. Combs, who is alleged to be a close friend of French and strictly an anti-Eversole man, was burned to the ground, as was also his storehouse attached. The dwelling cost about $8,000 and was not insured. It is charged that the fire was the work of an incendiary and the incendiary is supposed to be an Eversole sympathizer, who believes Combs had something to do with the reversal of the decision in the case of Fields and Atkins.

Since he came here he has been a quiet citizen. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, March 24, 1896 Free again Wesley and Will Whittaker pardoned by Governor Bradley Among the many pardons that have been granted by Gov. Bradley many have been worse than those granted Monday to Will and Wesley Whittaker. In 1880 Robert Jameson, of Perry county was shot and killed. Those were troublesome times in Perry county, being the height of the French-Eversole war. The officers of the law were either unable or unwilling to execute the law and in a few years a score or two of men were killed. Most of these murders were cold blooded assassinations and but few fell in open encounters. After awhile the violence of this warfare abated somewhat and the Grand jury of that county found a number of indictments. Among those indicted were Wesley Whittaker and his brother Will, the latter but a boy at the time Jameson was killed. As Perry county was just emerging from a state of anarchy and lawlessness, and it was felt that justice could not be meted out either in Perry or neighboring counties, a special act of the Legislature transferred all these cases to this county. Whether or not the killing of Jameson grew directly out of the leading feud, Wesley Whittaker cast his lot with the Eversoles and was a very prominent member of that faction. In consequence, when his trial came up here in the latter part of 1891 the State was assisted by Mr. French, who prosecuted most vigorously. For some reason the Eversoles weakened at a critical moment and the Whittakers were left without support. Without money, in a strange county, with the State and a powerful faction combined on the other side, conviction was not a surprise and a life sentence for both was the result. There was but little evidence against Will and had he asked a separate trial he would have been cleared, but he preferred to be tried with his brother in order to save the latter’s life, which he probably did. The pardon on Will has been expected and desired for several years. Wesley was a bad man and after conviction he made a full confession to representatives of The Democrat in which he acknowledged to participating in a number of the murders committed during the reign of terror in that part of the State. As the Whittakers were the only ones convicted of all those sent here for trial, many have thought that they too should be allowed to go free. They have improved much in looks since their incarceration and Will has grown into quite a handsome man. The husband had charged his wife with unfaithfulness, and of late years has become convinced that he was in the wrong. May is a lawyer of much ability and an ex-member of the Kentucky Legislature. The Winchester Democrat Friday, October 23, 1896
Eversole – French Feud 1897 -	For Life The trial of Joseph Adkins of Ford, for killing Judge Combs, which has been in progress several weeks at Barbourville, ended Friday with the verdict of guilty and life sentence to the penitentiary. The evidence was quite conflicting. One or two witnesses swore positively to seeing him fire the fatal shot, while others swore with equal positiveness to facts, which, if true, would have rendered it impossible for him to have been at Hazard at the time. This is the second time that he has been sentenced for life. The case will again be taken to the Court of Appeals. The prisoner was confidently expecting an acquittal. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, January 5, 1897

For the third time a jury has found Joseph Adkins of the murder (assassination) of old Judge Combs in Perry county, and for the third time he seeks escape through a Court of Appeal so ruled by technicalities that it finds it harder to permit the hanging or life imprisonment of a murderer than it would to thread a needle with a camel. And yet we wonder at the existence of mobs, and Judges lecture juries for not suppressing them.—Louisville Times.

This fling at our highest court is out of place and not in good taste. The Court of Appeals deals with points of law and not with facts. If the laws are wrong, the Court is not responsible and every man, even the vilest criminal is entitled to all his rights under the law. There has been too much abuse of our higher courts recently for the good of the country and we are surprised to see the Times joining in it.

Frank Polly Killed

A few years ago when the scene of the famous French-Eversole war was transferred from Perry county here, among the men who were under arrest charged with participation in the Eversole side, was a boy seventeen or eighteen years of age, with the face of an angel and the heart of a tiger. It was Frank Polly, probably the most desperate fighter on the Eversole side. When all the prosecutions were finally dismissed Polly went back to the mountains. It was rumored here that he killed his uncle with a maul shortly after being in Winchester, but this was afterward denied. He finally drifted over into Virginia where last week he fell out with one Frank Riggs and proceeded to kill him in the old Perry county fashion. Riggs was wounded but got away. Constable Blondell and Ed. Clark went to arrest Polly. The latter drew a big knife and cut the Constable so severely that he will die. Clark shot Polly killing him instantly.

The cases of Jesse Fields and Joe Adkins on an appeal from a life sentence for murder by the Knox Circuit Court, was argued in the Court of Appeals this week.

The Winchester Democrat, Friday, October 1, 1897

In the Court of Appeals fifteen days further time was given Joe Adkins, of Ford, to file grounds for a rehearing. The court recently dismissed his appeal from a life sentence for murder, on technical grounds.

The Winchester Democrat Tuesday November 9, 1897

Circuit Court at Barbourville is in session this week. Jesse Fields will be tried for the murder of Judge Combs, of Perry county. Joe Adkins is now serving a life sentence in the penitentiary.

Trouble at Jackson.

A press dispatch from Jackson dated Monday, says: "While four officers were trying to make some arrests Saturday night Deputy Jailer Jack Roberts was shot through his liver and his doctors say he is mortally wounded. "Col." And Josh Miller, Mose Feltner, Rob Vermillion, Sam Fields, all white and Dave Combs, colored, are in jail for the crime. "Col. Miller and Jesse Fields, of the famous French-Eversole war, who is now on trial at Barbourville for the murder of Judge Combs, were indicted at the last term of court for the murder of Alfred Little, a few weeks ago and are each under a $3,000 bond for the same.

A Newspaper Clipping.

Jos. Adkins, Perry County Feudist Serving a Life Sentence, Owes His Liberty to It—Pardoned by Gov. Bradley.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 6.—Joseph Adkins, the Perry county feudist, who was serving a life sentence and was pardoned Tuesday afternoon, owes his liberty to a newspaper

	clipping. He was convicted of the murder of Judge Josiah Combs in 1895. Combs' relatives swore they saw Adkins kill Judge Combs. Recently an old paper, which was hunted as evidence in Adkins' trial, but not found at that time, has been produced, and in this is an advertisement by the Combs offering a reward of $1,000 for apprehension of "the unknown murderers" of Combs. Several witnesses have since admitted they perjured themselves. Adkins was one of the leaders in the French-Eversole war, which caused the death of a half hundred people in Perry and other counties. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, December 12, 1899

Eversole holds the shrievalty of Perry county, and he had two warrants for Engle. He served them, and it was agreed that the prisoner could remain in his home over night, the sheriff to be on guard, and the pair would go to the county seat together later. Shortly after they had retired for the night the sheriff got up to get a drink of water. His movements awakened Engle, who remembered that there was a shotgun under his bed. He reached for it, took aim and fired, the charge taking effect in the sheriff's left breast and inflicting probably a fatal wound. The Winchester Democrat Fri., May 11, 1906

Ewell, Richard S.	Killed at Last S. C. Bowen of Nashville, Tenn., says: The true story of the death of Gen. Ewell is known only to a few. As a young man he was quite a dandy, and continued to pay a great deal of attention to his dress until August 1862, when he lost a leg at the battle of Groveton. He recovered in a few months and led his troops until the close of the war, but with the loss of his leg he also seemed to lose all interest in his personal appearance and after he went back to his farm in Tennessee was in the habit of wearing the most dreadful old garments imaginable, saying that it made no difference how a one legged man looked. A year or two after the close of the war there was a sale of quartermaster's stores, and Gen. Ewell bought a quantity of military trousers for which there was no longer any use. He issued them to his workmen, and at last took up the habit of wearing a pair about his farm. They were shoddy goods, very thin and flimsy, and on a damp day in the winter Ewell took a cold, which developed into pneumonia and from which he never recovered. A day or two before his death, when he knew there was no hope, he said to a friend. "The enemy has killed me at last. I was in many battles, was severely hit more than once, and thought I was as good as dead. When the war closed it seemed to me that I had nothing more to fear, but I was mistaken for here I am at last dying in a pair of Yankee breeches."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, February 4, 1891

The killing occurred at Dunaway church in the eastern part of the county some months ago and the trial attracted much attention as the defendant has a large circle of relatives and friends in the county. The theory of the defense was that the killing was done in self defense and it seems he succeeded in impressing his views on the jury as that body promptly returned a verdict of not guilty. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, December 20, 1910

Ewing, A. J.	Hon. A. J. Ewing, one of the wealthiest citizens of Bath, county died Wednesday of Bright's disease, aged 71 years. He served as County Judge and State Senator and at one time was prominently mentioned for Governor. He leaves eight children, one of whom is Mrs. J. Ed. Gaitskill, of this county. The Democrat, Wednesday, January 29, 1890. The will of the late Judge A. J. Ewing was admitted to probate in the Bath County Court Thursday. Specific devices are made to Mr. Ewing's eight daughters as follows: Mrs. Jas. Gatewood and Mrs. Josh. Owings, of Montgomery county, $50,000 each; Mrs. Jesse Turney, of Bourbon county, $40,000; Mrs. J. E. Gaitskill, of Clark county $30,000; Mrs. Dr. Poyntz, of Madison county, $15,000; Mrs. Dr. J. T. Catlett, of Owingsville, $21,000; Miss Sarepta Ewing, $20,000; Mrs. O. S. Riggen, of Dallas Texas, $5,000. The remainder of the estate estimated at from $300,000 to $400,000, goes to his son McClellan Ewing. The Democrat, Wednesday, February 19, 1890. The Flemingsburg Times-Democrat says: "G. A. Cassidy, Auditor's agent for Bath county, on Monday began proceedings in Bath county court against the estate of the A. J. Ewing, for back taxes due the State of Kentucky, for a period running back to 1865, and amounting in the aggregate to over $43,000. It is alleged that some years Judge Ewing failed to list as much as 1,800 acres of his land, and over $100,000 of his money, credits, etc." The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, December 17, 1890 The case of G. Ewing, Francis McClelland	Death of Clel Ewing. Francis McClelland Ewing died at his home in Bath county Monday aged thirty-nine years. He was one of the wealthiest men in this part of the State and was unmarried. His estate is valued at half a million dollars or more. He leaves six sisters one of whom is Mrs. J. Ed. Gaitskill, of this city. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, March 14, 1902 Real Estate Sold. The first day's sale of the real estate of the late Clel Ewing was held near Mt. Sterling Thursday. A large crowd was in attendance and bidding was spirited. The Hamilton farm, containing 364 acres, was sold to Josh Owings at $103.25 per acre. It is three and one half miles from the city. The Grubbs farm, containing 328 acres, was sold to R. C. Gatewood at $85 per acre. The Lane farm, containing 160 acres, was sold to L. T. Riddell, for $76 an acre. The Harper farm of 135 acres, brought $44.50, and was sold to James McCormick. The Howard's Mill farm adjoining containing 115 acres, brought $61 per acre. Col. Gatewood was the purchaser. The sale amounted to $90,665. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, March 3, 1903 A Singular Suit Several of the heirs of the estate of the late F. M. Ewing, of Bath county, have brought suit against Thos. J. Pergram to obtain possession of the 300-pound meteorite which Pergram found on the Ewing estate some time ago. Ewing, Harvey	Shot to death Harvey Ewing shot and instantly killed by Napoleon Devary Tuesday night For some days a protracted meeting has been in progress at Dunaways Methodist church and Tuesday night a difficulty occurred between Napoleon B. Devary and Harvey Ewing, in which the latter was instantly killed, his neck being broken by a bullet. Reports of the cause are meager, but Devary claims that Ewing was advancing on him with a knife and that the knife was found clutched in the dead man's hand. Officers Bedford and Tanner went after Devary Wednesday afternoon but missed him, as he had already started to town with his brother, and went by a different route. He was taken before Judge Evans and remanded to jail without bail, the examining trial being fixed for Tuesday morning. The body of Ewing was brought to this city and shipped to Stanton, and was buried at his old home at Powell's Valley. When the body arrived here it was viewed by Coroner Brinegar and a jury and the inquest will be finished this morning. The following compose the Coroners jury: Thos. J. Pendleton, Ben Shaw, Gus Aldridge, Rhodes Fluty, Chas. P. Haggard, and Geo. Powell. Some time ago young Devary and his mother, Mrs. Eviline Devary, were both declared of unsound minds and both were sent to the asylum at the same time. They were confined there for same, but were discharged as cured some months ago. Mrs. Devary has employed J.M. Stevenson as counsel and his plea will be self defense. The Winchester Democrat Friday, August 6, 1909 Coroner's inquest The inquest held by Coroner Brinegar over the dead body of Harry Ewing, who was killed by Boss Devary at Dunaway's church Tuesday night was finished Friday morning. The evidence threw but little light on the cause of the trouble, and it is difficult to see the real reason for the killing. After a patient hearing and the taking of considerable evidence the jury brought in the following verdict: "We, the jury, viewed the remains of the body of Harvey Ewing and find his death was caused by a pistol shot inflicted in his neck on August 3rd, 1909. We also believe from the evidence that the shot was fired from the hands of Polie Boston Devary." W.A. Fluty, Waller Powell, T.J. Pendleton, C.P. Haggard, B.R. Shaw and Gus Aldridge. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, August 10, 1909 Examining trial The examining trial of N.B. Devary for killing Harvey Ewing at Dunaways church last week was called for Tuesday but on account of absent witnesses it was postponed until yesterday. A large array of witnesses were summoned and at the time of going to press the trial was still in progress. Much interest was manifested and the Court house was crowded with spectators, many ladies being present. The Winchester Democrat Friday, August 13, 1909 Harvey Ewing was shot and killed by Boss Devarey at Dunaway's chapel Tuesday night. Ewing, Newton		The following dispatch from Owingsville appeared in Sunday's Courier-Journal: "About three weeks ago Newton Ewing came from his home in Clark county, Ky., to Peeledoak, Bath county and rented a small farm he had there. At the same time he collected his last year's rent for the land and as supposed, started home; but he failed to get there, and all efforts to discover his whereabouts were fruitless until yesterday afternoon, when, by an accident, his dead body was found in a pond on the edge of Montgomery county, with his throat cut from ear to ear. The fish had picked off the flesh from the man's bones, and what remained was badly decomposed; Ewing was known to have had on his person from $50 to $80 when he started for home, and for this he was doubtless murdered, but by whom is a mystery." The Winchester Democrat Wed., 7-3-1889 A Rifle in the Hands of John Martin the Instrument of Death On Monday evening Newton Ewing was killed near the mouth of West Fork on Lower Howard's Creek by John Martin, the instrument of death being a rifle. Martin was seen by a representative of the Democrat yesterday, but refused to talk. The facts however, so far as can be learned, are as follows: The parties lived in the same house, the house being rented by Sam and Newt Ewing who were single men, and Martin and wife kept house for them. On Sunday morning Martin says the Ewing boys were drinking, and pulled him out of bed and choked him. They also uttered dire threats against his life. In fear he left home and was afraid to return, but stayed the night with Maj. Conkwright. Exactly what transpired at the time of the killing could not be learned, but this was the cause of it. Martin came to town yesterday and gave himself up. He is the son of the late Robert Martin and a quiet, harmless man. A number of years ago Ewing is said to have induced his mother to sell what property she had, and he got hold of the money. He skipped with it and caused a report to be spread that he had been murdered in another part of the State, and his body thrown into a pond. His people believed it, and knew no better until he turned up several years later after having spent the money. The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, May 13, 1891

Eisaman in 2007; a brother, Merle L Hall, Jr.; and two sisters, Beatrice Hall Willey and Betty Gayle Hall Steva. Survivors include her son, Dixon Eisaman of New Castle, PA; a daughter, Christine Eisaman McDonald of Winchester, KY; three grandchildren, Matthew Eisaman (Heather), Jordan D Bigio and Ashley M McDonald Gurley (Justin). She is also survived by one great granddaughter, Avery S Eisaman and several nieces and nephews. Marjorie (known as Margie or Marge) grew up 2 blocks from Edinboro Lake and was an avid swimmer her entire life. She had many extra-curricular activities throughout her childhood and adult life including her paper route (The Grit), basketball, cheerleader, pianist, singer, band (yes, she played the drums!), bike riding and cross-country skiing. She and Chet enjoyed numerous canoe trips as well. She also loved gardening, which she passed on to all her children. Marge attended Edinboro High School and graduated in 1940. She also graduated from Edinboro State Teachers College (now Edinboro University) with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Biology Education. While at Edinboro College she participated in: Field Hockey, Swim Team, Sorority, Chorus and Yearbook Staff. It was at college that she met her husband, Chet, and they were married on December 8, 1943, prior to Chet going overseas to serve in the Army Air Corps during WWII. Marge was not an active member of the military, but during WWII, she did become a certified Link Instructor for pilot training. Later she also served as a “Rosie the Riveter” while working on the F4U Corsair at the Chance Vought Aircraft Corporation. Upon Chet’s return from the service, they built a cottage on Lakeside in Edinboro, and 3 years later moved to Seattle, WA. Eventually, they found their way back to Pennsylvania and in 1959, bought their forever home with 66 acres outside of Wattsburg, PA. Marge substitute taught in the Wattsburg School system over the years but preferred her role as a stay-at-home mom. After all her kids were on their own, she worked at the Duchess Shoppe in Erie, PA, and was the bookkeeper for Chet’s Commercial Art Business. She was a member of Wattsburg United Methodist Church where she sang in the choir, taught Bible School and was a member of the Women’s Society as well as other committees over the years. In 2004, Marge moved to Kentucky and has remained there until her death. Marge will be greatly missed by all who were fortunate enough to know her. Her positive attitude, sweet nature, wisdom, strength and enduring love of nature, family and people of all kinds will be her legacy. Friends may call at the Glunt Funeral Home and Crematory, Inc., 210 Erie Street, Edinboro, on Sunday, February 20th, from 12 to 2:30 PM with a service to follow immediately. Burial will be in East Springfield Cemetery on Monday, February 21st at 10:00 am. Memorials may be made to Wattsburg United Methodist Church Women’s Society or Choir, 9904 Jamestown Rd., Wattsburg, PA 16442. Elam, Lester Ray	Lester Ray Elam of Winchester, an unofficial KY historian, died at home on October 10, 2021 after a long illness. He was born in Lexington, KY to Henry Leander and Mary Josephine Hisle Elam on November 8, 1946. He was their third child. He is survived by his wife of 32 years, Cheryl Lynn Hammelman Elam, daughter Julie Gayle Webb (Leslie), and son, Joseph Ray, 2 granddaughters, Jayice Gayle and Blair Mitchell Raney, 2 step grandsons, and several nieces, nephews, and cousins. He is also survived by his sister, Linda Lee Young (James) of Cincinnati, and brother Henry Leander, Jr of South Carolina He is also survived by his wife's siblings, Suzy Hammelman Bailey (Paul), Steve (Vicki) Hammelman, and David (Angela) Hammelman. He is preceded in death by an infant daughter, Carrie Mitchell, his parents, and his younger brother, John Wayne Elam. He grew up in Lexington, and in 1973 he married Gayle Welch and they had 2 children. Later, in 1989, he married his second wife, Cheryl Hammelman, and they had one child, Joseph. His 10 year old son said "he is the best daddy in the world". First and foremost, Lester loved people and his family. He could carry on a long conversation with people of all walks of life and was known for his pranks and sense of humor. Quiet at first because he was "sizing up" the new acquaintances' personality and interests, he would talk to them for hours about a multitude of subjects as he was well schooled in many topics. His interests laid in history, mainly Kentucky history and Christian archeology. He was a lover of music, classical movies, and movie stars. His hobbies included golf, art, genealogy, watching and studying thoroughbred horses, Indy-Car racing, dogs, camping and shooting guns with his son, collecting eclectic pieces of jewelry, artwork, vintage golf clubs, silver pieces, and more. He also enjoyed the weather and became a Weather Spotter for the TV stations as a hobby. He loved working on cars, especially old sports cars and over his lifetime owned and tinkered with his Austin Healy, a vintage Jaguar, and 2 vintage Porches. He graduated from Henry Clay High School but attended Bryan Station for 3 years. He spent seven years in the US Army during the Vietnam war, was a medic, and was an officer. He went to college and earned a BA in graphic arts from Eastern KY University and later a degree in Civil Engineering from UK. He worked at the City of Lexington as a civil engineer. After that he owned a golf repair business and a home repair business. He was a Kentucky Colonel. He became a Mason in the Lexington Ky Lodge and went on to be a Shriner. He has been a lifelong member of a United Methodist Church starting at Epworth United Methodist where he said the family went when he was a child. He will be deeply missed by all his friends, family, and all who knew him. Visitation will be at Scobee Funeral Home, Winchester KY on Saturday from 1:00-3:00 PM. The funeral will follow at 3:00 PM: Reverend Dr. Todd Raider will be officiating. After services a Celebration Dinner will be held at Clark Energy, 2640 Ironworks Road, Winchester, KY 40391. In lieu of flowers, donations can be sent to the Shriners Hospital, 110 Conn Terrace, Lexington, KY 40508, or to Hospice East, 407 Shoppers Drive, Winchester, KY 40391.

Elliott Jr., Harold 'Butch'	Harold "Butch" E. Elliott Jr., a corporate manager and loving father, died peacefully at the age of 66 on the evening of April 4th, 2020 at Clark Regional Medical Center. Butch is survived by his sons, Kevin Lee Elliott (30), and Brian David Elliott (33). He is predeceased by his sister, Kathi Diane Elliott, his father, Harold E. Elliott Sr., and his mother, Lillian H. Elliott. Butch was born in Winchester on July 17, 1953 to Harold and Lillian Elliott. He graduated from Eastern Kentucky University in 1987 with a degree in Mass Communication, he married Diana Elliott in 1986. On March 2nd, 1987, and March 2nd, 1990 respectively, he and Diana welcomed their sons Brian and Kevin who were the most cherished joys of his life. He was hired on at Toyota Motor Manufacturing Kentucky shortly before its historic production began in 1988, and became a fiercely passionate believer and future consulting expert of "Toyota Way" and "Kaizen" manufacturing processes. His career at Toyota spanned over a decade, and he later relocated to Columbus, Ohio in the early 2000's after accepting a position at Commercial Vehicle Group, eventually retiring in 2013 as their Senior Corporate Manager for Global Business Development. Butch was a devoted father and a lifelong

	lover of American history, cinema, Looney Tunes, rock n' roll, Harley-Davidson motorcycles, and the Cleveland Browns. A talented vocalist at a young age, he performed as a lead singer for many hometown rock bands throughout his entire life. His career as a dedicated problem-solver in business allowed him to frequently visit Great Britain, Mexico, and the Czech Republic, and spent much of his adult years traveling abroad learning the unique histories of the world. Butch was an avid reader and loved playing board and computer games with his sons and close friends. He always instinctively believed in the good nature and potential of others and will be deeply missed by his friends, family, and all who knew him. Due to the state-wide gathering restrictions set forth by current developments, a private burial service will be held on April 9th at Clarmont Memorial Gardens in Winchester, Kentucky. Butch's cousin and childhood friend Reverend Dickie Taylor will officiate. Flowers, cards, and condolences may be mailed to 203 Allan Pl, Winchester KY 40391. The Winchester Sun April 8, 2020

Elswick, Elizabeth Ann Wright	Private memorial tributes are planned in Oklahoma and Kentucky for Elizabeth Ann Elswick. Born Nov. 11, 1927, in Winchester to Albert G. and Florence Abner Wright, she died Wednesday, May 15, 2013, at Mercy Health Love County Hospital in Marietta, Okla. She was the granddaughter of the late Kasus and Nannie Arthur Abner and Bayram and Carrie Stephens Wright of Winchester. A 1946 graduate of Winchester High School, she worked in the fashion and clothing industry while in school, assisting her father in his work as a representative for clothing lines, and after graduation in the business office of the Curlee Clothing Company. Elizabeth and George Edward Elswick were married at the First Methodist Church on North Main Street April 15, 1948. Shortly afterward, he accepted a ministerial appointment in the Oklahoma Methodist Conference, and they moved to begin a long ministry in that state, serving rural parishes as well as churches in Oklahoma City and Tulsa. They ultimately retired to live near Thackerville, Okla., an area he served while in active ministry. During their appointments in Oklahoma, Mrs. Elswick worked in education, serving on the audiovisual resources staff at Central High School in Oklahoma City, as circulation manager for an engineering research publication at the University of Tulsa, and in retirement as a substitute teacher in the Thackerville schools. She also worked in the legal field as a legal secretary in rural Oklahoma and as bookkeeper for Fenton, Fenton, Smith, Reneau and Moon in Oklahoma City. A longtime Methodist and gifted musician, she sang, played piano and coordinated special programs in churches for many years, as well as teaching Sunday School classes and serving as church secretary. She was active in the Oklahoma United Methodist Conference organization for retired clergy and spouses. Mrs. Elswick was a member of the Thackerville United Methodist Church. Her love of music, reading and writing continued throughout her retirement, as did her love for children, pets and storytelling. Avidly interested in many subjects, with a humorous bent to her writing, she leaves a rich legacy of memoirs. Mrs. Elswick enjoyed her role as a minister's wife, and was featured on YouTube as the speaker at a UMC retirees' workshop, where she related tales of her years in churches and parsonages. Throughout her life, she continued to love visiting her home state of Kentucky and her family there. She was preceded in death by her husband, the Rev. George Edward Elswick Sr.; her parents, Albert G. and Florence Abner Wright; sister, Betty Lorine Wright; sister and brother-in-law, Delena and Ted Jones; brother and sister-in-law, Edward and Betty Ruth Wright, and brother, Kenneth Wright. She is survived by her daughter and son, Judy and George Elswick Jr.; her sister and brother-in-law, Anna and Bobby Hollon; two brothers and sisters-in-law, Ray and Marlene Wright, and Freddie and Sharon Wright; grandson, Charles Elswick; and grandson, Jimmy Elswick and his wife Samira; and great-grandson, Matthew. Burial will be at the Bent Ridge Cemetery in Meta, Ky., under the direction of J.W. Call and Son. Memorial contributions may be made to the Bluegrass Heritage Museum in Winchester. Arrangements in Oklahoma are under the direction of Flanagan-Watts Funeral Home & Cremation Services, Marietta, Okla. Online guest book: wwattsfuneralhome.com
